FOR ENGLISHASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT
DESCRIBES MOST MURDEROUS OCCASION IN THE HISTORY OF WORLD.

MEAGER GAIN; BIG LOSS

English Have Gained, But Ground Taken Is Insignificant Compared With Number of Lives Lost.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, Aug. 16.—The battle of Pozieres has died down after a long series of British attacks, which, the war office says, gained them nothing. The British infantrymen remained in their trenches all day yesterday and a night attack failed.

German trenches opposite the British position at Commeourt on the Somme front, Monday, August 14, via Berlin and Sayville wireless. August 16, the Associated Press correspondent of the Associated Press. Half a million British have been engaged in the effort to break the German lines on the Somme front. It was a battle of attrition, the fighting between the German and British trenches. The British outnumbered the Germans six to one. They have gained ground in a depth of from three to five miles, but nowhere have been able to break through.

Trenches Virtually Useless. More than ever death has become a commonplace in this most murderous battle of all time. The Germans in the first line know that they probably will be killed if their positions are attacked. Trenches are virtually useless, for heavy British shells are dropping on them from broad channels of fire, no cover of any sort. The first line usually perishes.

The advancing British front troops are better off, because the Germans have been driven from their positions by the British. After the British artillery had leveled the German trenches, the infantry rushes in, often to be thrown out again, as soon as the British artillery ceases fire. The British are now to the proximity of the opposing line. Thus the battle has been going on for weeks, the opposing forces now gaining at a terrific cost, and then losing at even greater cost, a few yards of trenches.

At present, all the fighting by the British is carried on from their Pozieres salient, where their drive is unceasing day or night. German officers, who were in the Champagne offensive, said no such artillery fire ever had been developed previously. The German fire, too, is terrific. An idea of its intensity may be gained from the fact that on certain British troops, German guns threw gas shells in one minute and forty-five seconds, resulting in great slaughter.

Often the British assault dies away before the German second line, from machine guns pour out streams of bullets, literally cutting the men into fragments. At one point the Associated Press correspondent stood within eight hundred yards of the German trenches near Delville Wood. Near the German line, he had just buried 1,200 British, as the full in the firing line. Some 500 British prisoners who the correspondent saw being fired line, plainly were still dazed from the shock. They were a sorry spectacle, glad they had escaped from "Hell" as they termed it.

The correspondent visited the entire front of the present offensive, and everywhere found from talks with the Germans, that they were more determined than ever to stand their ground. The men are in capital shape physically, but they are exhausted, although they are looking upon death each time. An officer pointed out that now a days each man is his own leader, as it is often impossible under present conditions to have a general command. While the generals might still plan the actions, the officer said, it was plain that the infantry men acting upon his own initiative in the presence of death, must save the day.

Landscape Swept Clean. Back of the German line within British artillery range, hardly a single house was standing. Embars were still burning in the ruins of villages as the correspondents passed through. Officers said there were no German troops in such places, and that the victims were mostly French civilians. Of these, the correspondent saw scores of wounded. Whenever possible, the Germans removed the civilians, as at Buquoy. The population of the town was sent out at two o'clock in the morning, and the bombardment began at five o'clock. By noon the entire village was razed. The village of Rancourt met with a similar fate. The correspondent saw part of the population seeking for safety, and a few hours later looked on the burning debris of the town.

British aviators have made several attempts to burn the grain crops, apparently un mindful of the fact that it belongs to French peasants. One tractor, according to 800 yards from the ground, threw bombs among the harvesting party, killed two French girls and wounded others. No Safety in Zone. There is no safety anywhere in the zone behind the front. What the artillery does not reach is exposed constantly to the bombs of aviators. While the correspondent was at Buncourt, eight civilians were killed. Eighteen others were wounded, of whom four died in a German hospital the same day. At Cambrai four persons were killed and two wounded on the same night. A French civilian pointed out that while the German soldiers have built bombproofs in which to seek refuge, the civilians have only cellars.

Germans Win a Success. Berlin, Aug. 16.—German troops have won a success in the Carpathian region, according to the war office announcement today, capturing a height north of Catul. To the north of the Dniester, in Galicia, says the statement, the Russians only attacked weakly and were repulsed.

Slavs Take 358,000 Captives. Petrograd, Aug. 16.—Between June 4, when the Russian offensive was inaugurated, and August 12, General Brusiloff's forces captured more than 358,000 men, the war office announced today.

Great numbers of guns also were captured, says the report, which gives the following figures: Officers, 7,371; men, 350,845; cannon, 405; machine guns, 1,326; mine and bomb throwers, 338; transport carts, 292.

Government for Poland. London, Aug. 16.—It is announced from Vienna, says an Ebnalce Telegraph company dispatch from Copenhagen, that it has been decided to establish a system of self-government among the towns and communities in Polish territory occupied by the Austrians.

A large number of interned Polish citizens, the dispatch states, will be released and sent to homes in New York. Bombardment on Verdun Front. Paris, Aug. 16.—A violent bombardment was carried on last night on the Verdun front, says the Associated Press. Yaux and Le Chateau, Fleury, Meuse. Along the greater part of the front, the night attack passed quietly, the official report issued today says.

PARALYSIS SCOURGE
CONTINUES A PERIL

Although Checked in Brooklyn, Epidemic Gains to Alarming Extent in Manhattan.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Aug. 16.—The infantile paralysis epidemic, though it seems to have spent its force in Brooklyn, where it arose, continues to find its daily toll of small victims in Manhattan, and every effort is being spent to halt its progress. Health officials and physicians now freely confess that the plague has reached proportions of national gravity and its infection is being discovered in Washington, Philadelphia and other large eastern cities.

Reports from the southern states through the Mississippi valley and through the farther west show that within the past several months the disease has been making steady progress. There have been so far in the United States about 500 cases and approximately fifty deaths in Minnesota. There have been 243 cases with a death rate of about one in ten.

New York medical men are giving the plague their particular attention, especially as it has shown greater fury there. The hospital capacity of the city has been tested and very often temporary quarters have been required. There is also going rapidly forward the erection of isolation hospitals, that the small sufferers may be given the best treatment. A recent exhaustive study of the disease, published by the New York State Department of Health, shows that the disease is spread through the bites of its spread through the bites of insects, and perhaps through contagion, though it had never been previously listed by health commissioners for fear of its spread through the bites of insects. The disease is now being charged by the plague's patients were made before it was known to be so dangerous epidemic in character. However, the death rate shows well enough that it will require the most rigorous surveillance and health commissioners in towns where the disease has not yet made great progress are urged to use every preventive means regardless of the letter of the law. Established cases of infantile paralysis will be strictly quarantined most everywhere here, although it is not commonly considered by the quarantine laws.

While the disease continues to hold its own in Manhattan and throughout the Bronx and the local specialists at the Willard Parker hospital, where the small victims are being given particular study are interested in the use of a new serum though they are unwilling to submit to a definite opinion as to its value. The serum is taken from the blood of the average normal adult or from children who have shown no susceptibility to the disease. It is used on the theory that the blood of such a person contains a natural serum combating the paralysis and will be effective behind the disease. The physicians using it have seen the rapid recovery of children whose blood has received it, but there has also been a recovery as prompt among children in which the serum was not used.

Delay School Opening. On account of the prevalence of epidemic in Hoboken, the authorities of that city today decided to postpone the opening of schools until October, or later if necessary. The opening of schools in New York has already been tentatively deferred, but the dates have not been fixed. For the first time in years the alien labor clause has been waived by the immigration authorities in the case of the thirty Canadian nurses engaged by the local health department to help fight the epidemic, who were held up recently at the Vermont border.

WILL BE HELD AT RACINE
FIRST WEEK IN SEPTEMBER

Madison, Wis., Aug. 16.—Announcement was made today that the state drainage association would hold its annual meeting at Racine, Sept. 4-5 and that the delegates would come to Madison to attend the tractor demonstration here. The convention will be opened at Racine by Senator C. R. Everett, chairman of the joint legislative committee on drainage legislation. "Actual Benefits of Drainage" will be the subject of an address by James H. English, Waterford, followed by five minutes' talks by several Racine county land owners based on actual experience with drained land. F. J. Myers, Racine, will talk on "Legal Problems Peculiar to Drainage in Southern Wisconsin" and P. J. Kurgen, Burlington, will speak on "Drainage Engineering in Southeastern Wisconsin." On the morning of Sept. 5 the delegates will be taken on an automobile ride through Racine and Kenosha counties inspecting drained land. "If it rains, so much the better. We shall have the drainage in operation," says the program announcement.

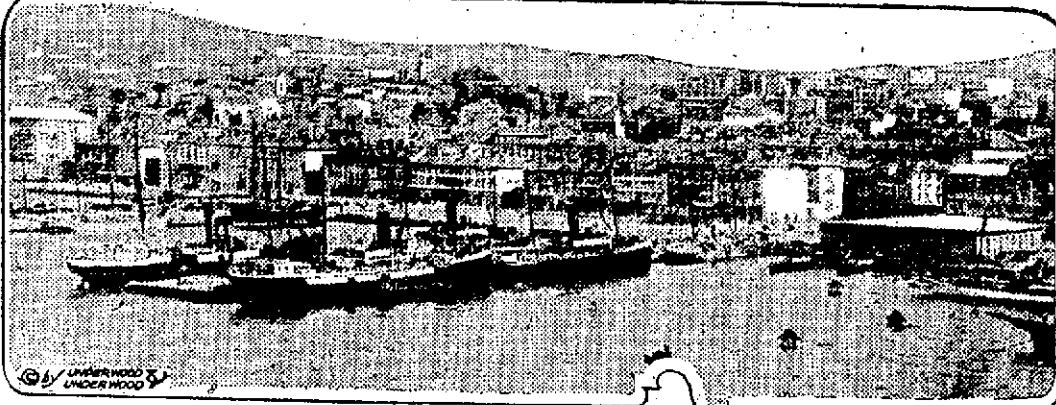

At the tractor demonstration in Madison Sept. 6-8 plows and all the ditching machines will be seen in operation in marsh land near the capital city. Most of the work of demonstrations is being arranged by R. R. Jones, secretary of the congress.

CAPTURE OF TRIESTE WILL BE GREATEST PRIZE OF WAR

Upper: General view of Trieste from waterfront. Lower: Gun to be used against Trieste.

Trieste has all the earmarks of a modern city, having all the conveniences of a great city. Its population is over two hundred thousand in normal times, and this number has been increased during the war. The Austrians call it the Hamburg of South Germany. The majority of the inhabitants are Italians, and are intensely in sympathy with the allied nations. The one language of the city of Trieste is Italian, and although the Austrian government has for years tried to make the city an Austrian one, they have found it a well-nigh impossible task. Trieste has a very fine harbor, and is a flourishing modern seaport. It is built in a crescent shape somewhat like the city of New Orleans.

The finance committee added the provision that after ninety days following passage of the revenue bill no fresh or frozen salmon or halibut from the North Pacific Ocean shall be admitted into the United States through any foreign country, except when they shall be in bond from an American port. The proposal is made to encourage Americans in this industry, which has rapidly been taken over by Great Britain.

Zoebler claims he was discharged from the Nordberg plant, secured employment with the Harvester Company, but on August 4 was discharged by Foreman Boyer. IRON RANGE STRIKE
PRACTICALLY ENDED

Mine Operators Believe Situation on Cuyuna Range Is Thoroughly In Hand.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Crosby, Minn., Aug. 16.—With all but probably fifty of the strikers again at work, the authorities and mine operators believe the situation on the Cuyuna Range is thoroughly in hand. Today more than fifty miners returned to work. Many of them tore off their I. W. W. cards as they entered the mine, company officials said. The police say, there is some one agitator who seems to have an influence over those who are still on strike. So far they have been unable to locate him. The only outward indication of a strike is the unusual number of men on the streets wearing their Sunday clothes on week days.

NEW STRIKE THREAT
PROPOSES A TIE-UP
OF NEW YORK LINES

Alleged Mistreatment of Returning Strikers May Be Ground for Serious Traffic Suspension.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Aug. 16.—A tie-up of not only every surface line in greater New York, but of elevated and subway lines as well, was threatened today by Wm. B. Fitzgerald, general organizer of the Amalgamated Association of Street & Electric Railway Employees, who with other union leaders, yesterday charged Theodore P. Shonts, president of the New York Railway company, with discharging strikers who had returned to work, interfering with the organization of the car men, and of violating the agreement, which ended the recent strike.

"If we do not get a satisfactory answer, we will call a strike within twenty-four hours," Mr. Fitzgerald declared today, referring to a letter sent to President Shonts last night, which is generally recognized as an ultimatum. A reply was demanded some time today.

AMERICAN SETTLERS
COME FROM CANADA

Emigration to Canadian Northwest Gives Way to Return of Americans from the Dominion.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Aug. 16.—That the war has put an end to the steady influx of farmers from the United States to Canada, and that the dominion of the United States is evident here by the fact that those who are able are coming into the upper peninsula of Michigan and either for employment or going to other parts of the United States. For several years the Canadians have kept up a persistent advertising campaign in the United States with the result that thousands of Americans brought thousands of persons to Canada. In this manner, thousands of acres of land became settled. High prices for everything, high taxes, and the possibility of being called to arms, has not only brought a stop to the influx, but has turned it toward the United States.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Aug. 16.—The forthcoming loan to be issued in the United States for Great Britain is regarded in bank circles as a preliminary move to protect exchange, which recently has been showing signs of drooping. WILSON HAS SETTLEMENT
PLAN READY

WILL SUBMIT PROPOSITION TO COMMITTEE OF 640 UNION MEN UPON THEIR ARRIVAL THURSDAY.

PROPOSES COMMISSION

Eight Hour Day and a Commission to Settle All Wage Disputes Substantance of President's Proposal.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 16.—President Wilson today completed a definite plan for settlement of the threatened railroad strike, which he will submit tomorrow to a general committee of 640 representatives of employers and to the managers' committee. The plan involves acceptance of basic eight hour day with regular pay for overtime, and an investigation by a commission of other issues.

While President Wilson, the managers' committee, and the spokesmen of the men awaited the arrival of the commission, which is expected here from New York tomorrow for the next white house conference, and the spokesmen of the federal representatives of the two sides considered the commission idea with a degree of seriousness which indicated that it would come into the negotiations as one of the box seats. The president's attempt to avert a nationwide strike.

Representatives of the railroad managers' committee, and the spokesmen principle and administration officials investigating his attitude found that A. J. Garretson, spokesman for the men, who is a member of the federal industrial relation committee, made a report favoring such an idea as an enlargement of the present federal board of mediation and conciliation. It was related that the commission idea with a degree of seriousness which indicated that it would come into the negotiations as one of the box seats. The president's attempt to avert a nationwide strike.

Meanwhile, the situation remains unchanged with both sides hoping for a way out of the difficulty, and no developments promised until tomorrow, when the meetings at the white house will be resumed.

President May Talk. After speaking tomorrow to the 640 representatives of the employees, President Wilson may make public his remarks. This possibility is regarded as very significant to the president's intention to make clear the responsibilities for plunging the country into a nationwide industrial disaster, and the manner in which he had brought it to both sides. If the president makes public his remarks, it will be a disclosure of what has taken place at the inside conferences.

Postpones Conference. Washington, Aug. 16.—President Wilson decided today to postpone further conferences with the representatives of the railroad and employees of the threatened railroad strike until tomorrow, when he will receive the general committee of 640 workmen in the East room of the White House.

In the meantime the committee of managers, here and the general committee of the employees will discuss the tentative plans now before them. Will Go to Washington. New York, Aug. 16.—Just before W. S. Carter, one of the railroad brotherhood men, went into conference with the chairman, he announced that he expected to return to Washington late today with the entire general committee. He said that arrangements had been made for two special trains to carry the chairman to Washington.

ETROG SACRED JEWISH FRUIT

Great Care Has to Be Used in Keeping This Citron From Being Blemished.

The etrog or sacred Jewish citron is one of the costliest and most interesting, and yet one of the least known fruits to be found in the markets of the world. It has been used by the Jews in connection with the feast of tabernacles since the time of the Babylonian captivity and is still treasured by the orthodox Hebrews in many countries, says the Country Gentleman.

In appearance the fruit greatly resembles the lemon, and it possesses a strong and agreeable perfume. The tree itself is a variety of citron and belongs to the citrus family, of which the orange and grapefruit are members.

Nearly all of the etrogs, or cedrats as they are sometimes called, are grown in Palestine and on islands near the coast of Greece. In these localities the groves are planted in sheltered valleys where the trees will be safe from frost and drying winds.

Great care is used to protect the fruit from the time of blooming until it is sold. The young fruit is tenderly wrapped in soft lint, lest it be marred by a scratch or blemish, and when mature it is carefully packed in a specially constructed box with individual lined compartments. For religious purposes it is essential that the fruit be free from blemishes. Even the delicate stems must be preserved intact.

CIRCUS ARRIVES ON TIME THIS MORNING

UNLOADED AT FIVE POINTS TO DELIGHT OF THOUSANDS OF SPECTATORS.

NO PARADE GIVEN

City Officials Objected to Route Circus Proposed to Travel Over and the Street Display Was Called Off.

Thousands of Janesville residents and many from a considerable distance were at the five points this morning to watch the great Ringling circus arrive in the city from Racine, unload their various wagons, start the animals for the circus grounds and otherwise enjoy the unique experience of getting up before breakfast to witness the inner life of the great tented city that visited the city for a day.

The circus is always an institution, and particularly Ringling's, perhaps because they are a Wisconsin product, possibly because they are the biggest show on the road. Time was when the Ringlings were simply a hall performance. Now they travel by special trains and have thousands of employees. They are without doubt the greatest circus ever exhibited. It is an interesting lesson to watch how the big wagons are unloaded and the horses led out from their tightly packed cars to take up their day's work. It all goes by clock and there are no mistakes, no errors, and the only interference to the spectators this morning was the constant switching of the engines.

No street parade was given in all cases there are two sides to the controversy. The city had sanded the Milwaukee street hill, only a six per cent grade, had offered the circus people the use of the entire city department to aid them in running their wagons down the hill should it be necessary, but refused to permit them to take their day's work from Milwaukee avenue to Racine street, thence out to Glen street and then down that hill to North Bluff and over to Milwaukee street again.

The refusal was based on the fact that when the circus last took this route they did considerable damage, not only gouging the streets badly but also breaking the gutter curbs to such an extent that the property owners objected strenuously. Both Mayor Fathers and Street Commissioner explained these facts to the circus management but they refused to use any other route. The circus management claimed this refusal was based on the fact that Milwaukee avenue being recently oiled, even though the Milwaukee street was sanded, would make it dangerous. Commissioner Goodman insisted that in many cities such conditions had been met considerably worse than in Janesville and overcome, and that the show could parade if they wished to.

The result was that the parade was called off, and the circus management of thousands who had gathered from all parts of the country to watch the display. It appears to be a difference of opinion between the city officials and the circus management, although the circus officials and the city officials claim the parade could have been given had the circus so desired. At any rate there was no parade.

The afternoon performance, however, made up for any deficiency in the morning parade. The opening spectacle of the circus was most beautiful; the daring equestrian acts, the flying aerial teams and the wonderful performance of the circus animals all went to make up the wonderful show that has made this circus famous the world over.

Despite the fact the parade refused to go down Milwaukee street hill, the circus loaded wagons will make the route tonight, while the circus they were all running light. Another reason for refusing permission to use the streets desired was that they had been freshly oiled, and with the exception of the "resident show" no other circus has ever found it impossible to use the Milwaukee street hill for parade purposes.

LOCAL MILITIA WILL ATTEND STATE CAMP; LEAVE NEXT MONDAY

Janesville Militia Company to Leave for Camp Douglas Next Monday Morning.

Janesville's new military organization, the Second Separate Company of the Wisconsin National Guard, will leave for Camp Douglas next Monday morning. Captain Hans Jaekle filed his inquiries this morning with the adjutant general at Madison relative to the transportation of his men to the Wisconsin camp.

The Janesville company has a membership of fifty-two men who have passed the required physical and medical examinations, and drills are being conducted regularly. Out of the sixty-seven men examined only thirty-two were rejected. The lease for the Kemmerer building on East Milwaukee street has been closed, and workmen are busy remodeling the rooms. When completed they will be modern in every respect and will rank among the best of the small armories in the state. The total size of the rooms is thirty-eight by fifty-four feet.

It is not known whether the company will go to Camp Douglas. Captain Jaekle stated this morning that only those giving the best of excuses will be exempted. Every member will have to go to camp for at least a day to receive his equipment. The troops will travel to the camp in their civilian suits and will immediately upon arrival be issued their military uniforms to each man. The camp drill will continue from the 21st to the 31st.

REGISTRATION DAY A WEEK FROM TUESDAY

Voters of this and other cities, towns and villages of the state will register Tuesday, August 29th for the primary election of September 5th.

Another registration will be made on primary day at the time of voting and the November election signing day will be on October 31st.

WISCONSIN GUARDS WIN A REPUTATION FOR GOOD BEHAVIOR

Badger Soldiers Have Conducted Themselves in Marked Contrast to Illinois Men, Says Agnew.

Wisconsin guardsmen serving in the United States army along the Mexican border are maintaining the reputation for good behavior and decorum which the Badger soldiers of '98 won for themselves at Jacksonville, according to Russell Agnew, first Wisconsin infantry, who is home on a furlough. The Wisconsin boys are conducting themselves in marked contrast to the Illinois troops who are called "yellow" in army circles.

The Wisconsin boys are well thought of by the civilians and army men, said Agnew, "and we certainly were given a royal reception. People have remarked time and again on what a clean bunch of fellows the Badger boys were, and we have maintained the reputation all along the line. There have been few cases of insubordination among the Wisconsin boys and they have shown themselves well able to withstand the rigors of federal army training, which have been more or less severe owing to the long hours of drilling and the unusually hot weather of the past month. There have been a few cases of sickness among the Badger boys and none of them become fagged out on the marches.

The Illinois soldiers got a bad reputation for their conduct on the way to the border they mutilated the coaches they rode in and at the towns where they stopped they insulted the civilians who had gathered to greet them and distribute press. It was the same way when they got to San Antonio and as a result the civilians became disgusted with them. In general, the Illinois troops were trouble-makers. They have complained continually of what they had to eat and were always raising a howl about something. Their poor showing in the march to the border was due to the fact that they were "quitters." A lot of them thought if they laid down along the road they would get a ride, and they were disappointed for they were left to get there as best they could.

I don't say these things because I belong to the Wisconsin regiment, but because it is general talk around camp and at headquarters. The Illinois men are in bad and will have to pay for their smartness by extra hard drilling. The Wisconsin boys, however, were due to the fact that they were "quitters." A lot of them thought if they laid down along the road they would get a ride, and they were disappointed for they were left to get there as best they could.

Commenting on the stories given wide circulation in Chicago papers concerning poor food and inadequate accommodations at the army camps, Agnew said they were untrue. "I was able to observe, although he could not vouch for the situation at Brownsville conditions were as good as they could be. "We eat good food," said Agnew, "and while the army cooks don't have the knack of fixing up vegetables in different ways, everything is clean and wholesome. We get good beef, vegetables, spaghetti and canned goods, and as the bread as a man would care to eat. It is all supplied at the post baker shops which are not so long now as they were running night and day. The quarters are sanitary and screened in. They are building company mess halls which will have open screened insides.

"Stories that have come home about bad grub and hardships are largely personal letters of the boys to their girlfriends or others whom they wish to impress and before whom they seek to appear as heroes. This is the view which General Funston takes and I know it to be correct."

Agnew declared that General Richardson, who is in command of the Wisconsin brigade, has shown himself to be an able officer, capable in every way and ranking with the best of the federal army men. He has looked after the interests of the Wisconsin troops in a most satisfactory manner. The only complaint which can reasonably be made, according to Agnew, is the length of drill which was given at the start. Drill hours were from 7:15 to 11:30 in the morning and three to five in the afternoon. Hours are not so long now as they were become more hardened. Some of the men are chafing at the necessity of staying at the border with nothing more exciting to do than to train when they might be at home working. Prospects are that they will not return until late in November.

An intelligent Frenchman was studying the English language. "When I discovered that if I was quick I was fast," said he, "and that if I was fast I was quick, I spent too much time in trying to learn English. The first one won one dollar prize; I was tempted to give up trying to learn English."

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

By ALFRED W. McCANN (Copyright, 1915, by Alfred W. McCann.)

CHAPTER 98.

The extent to which sodium sulphate is used in the meat industry of the United States is not suspected by the public. The methods employed in using this chemical as a preservative for chopped meat and as means of imparting a handsome reddish color to cuts of beef are revelated in the following narrative:

In order to suggest to private investigators desirous of ascertaining

the truth just how to go about the work of locating the trail of sulphites

in the sources through the retail meat trade of the United States, I will set down here in narrative form

the details of one of the many investigations which I have been privileged to conduct in the presence of persons of professional witness.

The results of these investigations are now a matter of record, and to any individual interested in names,

dates, and court proceedings I shall be glad to impart confidential information on request.

In the quiet village of R—, N.

J. Mrs. C. purchased meat from her butcher for the purpose of making meat broth for little baby C—

and one-half year old baby B—

The appearance of the meat, bright red, finally aroused the suspicions of Mrs. C—, who sent me a sample.

Mrs. C— had been getting meat broth for three or four weeks and thought that perhaps the pallor of the child might mean that some subtle, slow-moving poison was at work in the food and her mother instincts.

Thus came the sample of meat to me for criticism.

It had been doped with "preservative." This fact was verified by Professor George Ferguson of Columbia

University, who found the specimen

submitted to contain anhydrous sodium sulphite to the extent of .112

per cent, which is equivalent to crystallized sodium sulphite .225 per cent.

The meat had been purchased from a dealer "in choice meats, groceries,

vegetables, oysters, and clams in season," doing business on the principal street of the town, which is one of the most important of New York City, to which men who labor in Manhattan

during the day return at night to sleep.

The textbook used in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia

University, "Pharmacology and Therapeutics," declares:

"Symptoms of gastric and intestinal disturbance have been produced by apparently small quantities of sodium

sulphite. Even small doses of sulphite administered daily to animals cause

hemorrhages in different organs and accelerate the use of sulphites to preserve meat, wine, and vegetables

is condemned.

In addition sodium sulphite has little effect in preserving meat from putrefaction, although it improves

appearance."

Following the proof that the meat

sold to Mrs. C— contained the residue of a delicate baby, contained supplies, I journeyed to R— and inquired from the dealer a sample of hamburger steak. It was full of supplies.

I then appealed to the local Board of Health for assistance. The postmaster, who was also the president of the Board of Health, after the situation was explained, entered into active co-operation with my squad

and summoned the health officer

under whose badge of authority we acted.

Dr. X—, a member of the Board of Health, was seen. He said: "If you have found sodium sulphite in the meat sold in R—, go after it.

It is horrible, most horrible. It is an outrage. We cannot tolerate a condition here that will produce chronic poisoning. Any preservative that will poison the corpse count of the city can end only in disaster when used in food. Clean up the place."

We returned to the shop where the meat was purchased.

The dealer, who was a man of middle age, with a friendly smile,

asked me to sit down. He said:

"What is the matter?"

"I have brought you a sample of meat that I have just purchased from you. It is full of sodium sul-phite. It is a poison. It is a crime.

THE CITY SCHOOLS.

The first week in September will witness the opening of the Janesville city schools for the coming year. While on school for years opening is not much varied from another, still the opening of the session for Nineteen Sixteen is fraught with exceptional interest to both pupils and instructors. A new head of the Janesville school system is inaugurated in office and before the school year commences the Gazette bespeaks a heartily welcome for Mr. H. H. Faust, the new superintendent who succeeds
H. C. Buell.

Janesville has long been noted for its schools and its prestige in educational matters the state through. The incoming superintendent is a man well qualified to continue and increase this prestige. He is not only a university graduate, completing his collegiate course at the University of Wisconsin with the class of 1905, but he has also had practical experience as a teacher and later at Hibbing, Minn., as superintendent of schools. Previous to that he taught in high schools and is thoroughly equipped for the work he undertakes.

Mr. Faust is a man who has made friends wherever he has lived. His qualifications make him particularly qualified for Janesville and the Gazette bespeaks a hearty welcome for him that should be accorded to a man chosen to direct and supervise the work of the coming generation of citizens.
He is under forty, just at the prime of his career, and is a welcome addition to the community in which he is called upon to live and devote his energies for their best interests.

The vacation period draws to a close and the pupils will return to their studies with renewed vigor and energy. It means a new line of work for them, new teachers, new methods of discipline. They are older and must meet new conditions. New studies will be taken up and both ward and high school pupils should devote their energies to the work at hand, obtaining an education while they have the opportunity. Too soon the work of life begins and every day counts now.

THE WHEAT MARKET.

Wheat has jumped to untold prices.
The great war waged in Europe is directly responsible for this condition.
There is serious talk of a bread famine, that is, a rise in the price per bushel. Flour has gone up by pounds and in consequence the country people who talk about the wonderful crop in Russia of wheat really amounts to. The Wall Street Journal explains this by saying that statisticians are fond of pointing to the huge supply of wheat that is supposed to have accumulated in Russia since the war began. When they do this, chills are supposed to run up and down the market spine, for Russia is one of the greatest wheat exporters in the world. But the Russian streamer has not yet been reached. When the market does come to it, here are some of the things that may be found to be true:

The Russian wheat harvests of 1914
and 1915 aggregated 1,782,000,000 bushels. Russia's population consumes coarse grains almost as readily as wheat, when it is necessary, but figuring the future on the past, these harvests left an exportable surplus of 400,000,000 bushels. Crop news is so vague and unreliable that no one really knows whether this is theoretical or actual wheat.

Meanwhile another harvest is ripening. The normal acreage does not appear to have been seeded. A semi-official report says that the weather is favorable and the outlook good for all crops. He who estimates Russia's crop at this time is walking in darkness thicker than those who are trying to figure out our spring wheat crop. The most that can be said is that a normal crop would develop a safe maximum estimate. Also, Poland, which is always included in the Russian production, with an average of 24,000,000 bushels must be counted
out this season.

Russia has not the elevator and terminal facilities of the United States and Canada. It is a violent presumption that the grain of the two last crops has not been well stored and protected. There is the waste of war and the necessity of feeding the vast armies now being put in the field as rapidly as equipments can be provided. It is fair to assume that before the last great offensive begins (which may not be for many months)
there will be a tremendous increase in numbers. As meat increases in price, the population also will consume a greater proportion of grain per capita. The great Russian surplus may not be permitted to assume the size of a mountain.

When peace puts Russia in the field
as a shipper, it will also put other hungry countries in as consumers.
An Amsterdam authority says the central powers and their allies will harvest 35 per cent less than normal.
Last year's harvest was a calamity for Germany. When they can get food in peace these people will want to eat as they have not since the war began. Starving Poland also will require help from Russia. Belgium and Holland (great per capita consumers of wheat) will take more than now.
The world harvest will probably be 600,000,000 bushels less than last year.
The big world surplus so often pointed to will not be in evidence, for this counter-balance any possible Russian surplus.

THE PRIMARY.

When Caesar was about to go to his death in the halls of the senate
at the foot of the statue of Pompey, stabbed by his own friends, a soothsayer bid him beware the Ides of March. When Babylon fell, a wonderful band appeared on the walls of the ruler's palace and a mysterious message. Babylon fell, the Medes and Persians conquered. Caesar was slain and bloody civil war followed.

Today the primary on September sixth represents the crucial point in Wisconsin politics. On that day the Republicans of the state will place in nomination candidates for the office
of United States senator, for governor,
for a whole state ticket, for state senator in the Janesville district, and members of the assembly. It will be the Ides of March for some of the aspirants, but for whom?

Long has the state been in the throes of the thralldom of the "spoilers." The "tax-eaters," men who ran for office to create a campaign fund and a campaign machine. Men who once elected retained their positions
by taxing the state and voters for their funds to conduct the next campaign.
There is evidence of that on file at Madison and the scrap heap with many another "progressive idea" which the taxpayer paid for without knowing it.

In Wisconsin, Malcolm G. Jeffris is running on a republican ticket for the office of United States senator, a republican and an American. He should be nominated and will be if his friends turn out and vote for him.
Emanuel L. Philipp is running for gubernatorial nomination on a platform of republican doctrines backed by a record of economical administration of state affairs. Behind him are men of the type of Cousins, for lieutenant governor; George Harrington, for secretary of state; Johnson, for state treasurer; and Hicks, for attorney general. They should all be nominated.

Right here in Rock county L. C.
Whitely, for the first district, has no opposition for nomination and will doubtless be returned. In the second district A. G. Winegar of Beloit is opposed by a candidate noted for his adherence to the "tax-eaters" and ex-perimentalists, who served one term in the legislature and seeks to return
after a stunning defeat two years ago
by his present opponent on a record of extravagance. It is to be hoped the voters will know how to vote in this case.

For state senate the "tax-eaters"
have picked out a Beloit resident who has always been a loyal standard-bearer and who has been dragged, perhaps unwillingly, into the present contest. At any rate L. E. Cunningham has demonstrated by his record that he deserves renomination and should receive the endorsement of his fellow Republicans upon the record he has made during his four years in office.
The September primaries are to the end of one regime or another. The voters have the opportunity to select true republicans for office or to reject their candidates and select men who are not in accord with the ideals of the republican party, with the thought of retrenchment and reduction of the tax burdens and are candidates for office merely for the revenue that they may obtain.

A stranger asked a merchant this past week if they had band concerts every night and free vaudeville on the streets and was answered without a smile "Why certainly." Of course they had an average of two band concerts every week this summer and as for vaudeville why all you have to do is watch the pedestrians, who persist
in crossing the streets "jayhawking," dodging autos who cut corners, and you have the vaudeville.

Here's to the cement road between Janesville and Beloit, and next extend it northward and eastward. There is nothing like good roads to bring trade to a community and the sooner
the farmers learn the value in hauling their products to the market over a good road at all times, and the city people in bringing trade to the city by well-kept highways, the quicker the roads will be built.

Recently a prominent writer on livestock arrived in Janesville and sought information as to how to reach this town. Asked why Rock county had been selected, he was free to state that he had been informed some of the best breeds of cattle in the middle western states were to be found here and he was looking for the best, not the second best. This is a compliment that should not go without comment.

Congressman Cooper is in no danger of defeat at the September primaries because no one is running against him. The progressives gave up the idea when they picked out candidates for certain county offices,
for instance against Winegar at Beloit.
Then their supply of aspirants ran short and they quit. He will be renominated and re-elected without a question of doubt.

This is Rock county fair week. If you have not yet visited the exhibit plan to do so. It is Rock county product and one which the whole county should be proud of and help support. When there was no Rock county fair the residents of Janesville carried the burden for several years
at a heavy expense and now they deserve support.

President Wilson has not yet been formally elected but he was nominated by the democratic national convention at St. Louis, Mo., surprised he will be elected he is scheduled to run for a second term after announcing in his platform four years ago that one term was enough for a president!

If you did not go down to see the circus in this morning you missed half the enjoyment of the day and forgot the days when you laid awake all night just for that purpose. Safe to say half of young Janesville was at the Five Points about daylight so as not to miss anything that happened.

Tonight is circus night. Remember that many a horse has been stolen before the barn door was locked and so do not leave home until you are certain that everything is safe from the light-fingered gentry who make a practice to pay visits after dark.

Perhaps next year will see the Rock County Sugar company factory ready to do business. The delay this year was on account of seed and this may be overcome by the coming planting season with the tariff replaced on sugar.

It looks as though the boast that Janesville is the center of the million dollar tobacco belt is going to be realized this year with prices soaring as they are now for crops in the field.

It is always the gift horse that bites
you or the snake you warned in your bosom that stings with the most venom. Have you ever noticed this fact?

The New Cult.

established a new cult, whose principle is to eat. He has cured himself of dyspepsia, which he suffered thirty years, by eating everything he wants every time he wants it.)

Now says William Henry Crane:
When you have got a little pain,
Just eat.

When dyspepsia shakes your frame,
Don't prepare to quit the game,
Just eat.

When you've got the tummy ache,
Don't give up for mercy's sake;
Grab a good big slice of steak,
And eat and eat.

Don't go round forlorn and sad
When you think you're feeling bad,
Just eat.

Don't make up your mind to die,
Get a slab of good mince pie,
And eat.

When your dizzy head careens,
Just forget what sickness means,
Buy a plate of pork and beans,
And eat and eat.

Give the lumbago and the grip
And paralysis the slip,
And eat.

When the little microbes imp
Into you would put the crimps,
Buy a salad made of shrimps,
And eat and eat.

The Retort Courteous.
Hogan had died.
Casey, a friend of Hogan's, had been away and arrived in town on the day of the funeral. With a satchel in his hand, he passed Hogan's house, just as the pallbearers were carrying the casket out to the hearse. Hogan had been a very large man and the pallbearers were straining every muscle.

Casey stood agape, but finally approached one of the pallbearers.
"Who's in there?" he demanded,
pointing to the casket.

"Hogan," panted the pallbearer.
"What is Hogan dead?"

The pallbearer turned upon Casey dismayed and said: "For the love of Mike, you don't think we are just rehearsing this, do you?"

Today is "four day and nine" the only day we have: the day in which we play our part. What our part may signify in the great whole we may not understand; but we are here to play it, and now is our time. This we know: It is a part of action, not of whining. It is a part of love, not of cynicism. It is for us to express love in terms of human helpfulness. This we know, for we have learned from sad experience that any other course of life leads toward decay and waste.—David Starr Jordan.

MADE MOCKERY OF MONARCH

In the Reign of George III English Caricaturists Proved the Power of the Pencil.

Nearly every great diamond has a history. These histories are always romantic, embodying numerous adventures, some of which are tragic. In the history of the Hastings tragedy of England is a charge of bribery against a king, George III, which gave the gentle art of caricature an opportunity such as had never come to it before and showed the power that caricature could wield upon a people. At a levee of the king held on June 14, 1780, a very valuable diamond, of unusual size and brilliancy, was presented to George III, ostensibly as a gift from theizam, or native ruler of the Decan, India. At the period when this magnificent peace offering was given to the king the impeachment of Warren Hastings was advancing in parliament and it was current rumor that this and several lesser diamonds were the purchase price of Hastings' acquittal. Caricatures appeared in the windows of the printshops. One represented Hastings wheeling the king to market in a barrow and saying: "What a man buys he may sell again." In another, the king was exhibited kneeling, with his mouth open and Hastings throwing diamonds into it. An Italian surgeon then in London pretending to eat paying stones placed the walls with bills describing himself as "The Greatest Stone Eater." Improving upon this the caricaturists represented the king in the character of the Great Stone Eater.

THIRTEENTH U. S. V. AT ANNUAL REUNION

REGIMENT RECRUITED IN AND ABOUT JANESVILLE TALK OF OLDEN DAYS.

OLD VETERANS GATHER

Originally Had Sixteen Hundred Men Enlisted.—But Two Hundred Left to Answer Roll Call.

Today marks the forty-seventh annual gathering of the Thirteenth Wisconsin Volunteers. Recruited in August of 1861 with three companies from Janesville, one from Evansville, one from Edgerton and one from Milton, one from Whitewater, one near Deane, one at Sharon and one near Brodhead, the regiment was mustered into service in November of the same year, and was not mustered out until November 28th, 1865, at San Antonio, where the Wisconsin brigade is now stationed.

Maurice Malone was the first Colonel, and prominent among the officers whose names are well known and lovingly remembered by local county residents were Major John Cobb, Captains Pliny Norcross, F. F. Stevens, William Rucker, the regimental adjutant, and Lieutenant L. T. Nichols. Originally, with four companies of service, a total of six hundred men were on the muster rolls. Today but two hundred remain alive.

The original officers but four are alive. Captain Edward Rucker of this city, Lieutenant Laurence Bear, company C, Brown City, Kansas; Lieutenant George C. Brown of Centerville, Ala., and Lieutenant J. L. Fowle of Tonka, Minn., are the only oldest veterans present at today's reunion. B. R. Le Valley, 89, of Sharon, and J. F. Butler, 87, of Minneapolis. The youngest is first sergeant, the regiment since its first service, the regiment was used to guard railroads and for garrison duty in Kansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Texas. Its annual reunions are a source of much enjoyment to the members and they bring together many old comrades who have not met for years. George W. Clarke, who makes his home in Janesville, is president, and W. P. Clarke of Milton is secretary.

The session was held this afternoon at the East Side Odd Fellows' hall, starting at one-thirty. It is held on the third Wednesday in August. This year, which this year happens to come on circus day, perhaps one of the members of this regiment who has gained most prominence in the world, whose name is most discussed, enlisted in 1861 while employed as a clerk at the James Sutherland book store, and at the conclusion of the war continued his great fight in the interest of humanity. Today he is a father in the Pacific, among his leper students and charges, Brother Joseph Dutton is persistence thinking of the members of his old regiment who are holding their reunion here and they in turn think of him.

There is no fixed program at these gatherings. Merely the signing of the muster roll, the reading of Secretary Clarke's report and a general discussion of the life of the comrades gone to the world beyond, and those who send their greetings, though unable to be present themselves. The following is a list of those present at today's gathering:

Peter Murphy, T. B. Colwell, G. S. Bunker, C. H. Smith, E. B. Child, H. M. Weaver, James Hurd, J. E. G. M. Gooch, J. H. West, Footville; A. M. Campbell, Albion; A. R. Thatcher, H. M. Miller, Henry Smith, C. I. Hillard, Whitefish; E. H. Huber, P. C. Butas, Fontana; W. J. Brodson, Volney Boyce, W. J. Markle, Charles Harkle, Sharon; H. C. Curtis, Wauwatosa; O. C. TWO HEART ATTACKS ON STREETS LOCALLY

Chicago Man Stricken Last Night and Again This Morning—Work Long to Revive Him.

Charles Wandlass, 369 Woodworth avenue, Chicago, a cigarmaker who has been working at Elkhorn until recently, was stricken with a sudden attack of heart failure at the corner of Milwaukee and River streets about 7:50 o'clock last evening. Wandlass was carried to the police station where a physician worked over him an hour and a half before his condition was anywhere near normal. Wandlass stayed at the station throughout the night and left this morning, still very weak. He said that he had been in a New York city hospital this spring for five months. At 11:30 o'clock this morning the man suffered another collapse. He fell this time near the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets and was hurried to the police station in a car commandeered for the trip. Wandlass was still there at a late hour and expectations were that means would be arranged for him to be sent to his relatives at Chicago.

Homemade Varnish.

A simple recipe for a good varnish suitable for table tops is as follows: Mix enough lampblack with shellac to make the mixture black, but not enough to thicken it much. After sandpapering the wood smooth, apply two coats of varnish, sandpapering lightly after each coat. Over this put one or two coats of dull varnish. This makes the wood waterproof, preserves it, and improves the appearance of the table top.

LOCAL WOMAN'S AUTO INJURES BELOIT MEN

Mrs. Ernest Blaschke Figures in Accident With Line City People at Main Street Corner.

Confused with the signals of traffic officers at the corner of Milwaukee and Main streets about 11:45 o'clock, Mrs. Ernest Blaschke, 635 Hickory street, driving a big touring car, ran down and caused painful bruises to Louis Ormsby and Fred Wootton, both of Beloit. Neither man was seriously hurt.

Mrs. Blaschke, according to her story this afternoon was driving east on West Milwaukee street five children were with her in the car. She had crossed the bridge and had planned to keep straight on up the hill but seeing the traffic congestion at the corner she decided to turn onto North Main street.

As she passed the south crossing and an officer signalled her forward as she thought, but as she meant, it has been since ascertained, for her to slow down. At the last moment she turned into North Main Wootton and Ormsby, who were going east, were unable to escape from the path of the oncoming car.

Both were knocked to the ground and their clothes torn to tatters. They received injuries about the head, arms and limbs. Mrs. Blaschke said that when she saw the men she attempted to stop but the car struck them. Her presence of mind in driving straight on after she had hit them, saved the two from more serious injuries. Neither left the police station this afternoon because of the condition of what was left of their clothing.

NINETY-SIX CALLS MADE DURING JULY BY VISITING NURSE

Eight New Cases Reported Yesterday to City Commission.—Award Contract for City Coal.

According to the report made to the city commissioners at their meeting yesterday afternoon, Miss Elizabeth Joyce, visiting nurse, made ninety-six calls during the month of July. She reported a total of thirty-one cases needing her attention, thirty-one of which had previously been called to the attention of the commission, and eight new ones. This latter list she diagnosed as one each of tuberculosis, chorea, rheumatism, pediculosis, chorea and tonsillitis.

Bids to furnish the city schools, library, fire stations and city hall with coal for the year were opened and the contract was given to the Janesville Coal company, their bid being the lowest and best of the total of three firms which attempted to secure the contract. Pocahontas mine run will be at $4.30; Florida egg and range, $3.58; chestnut, $3.33 and buckwheat, $5.65. Following Sept. 1 the contract calls for an increase of ten cents per ton on all sizes with the exception of Pocahontas.

The commission confirmed the appointment of John Dalton as a special policeman without pay, allowed the bids for labor and material for the city hall, and ordered twenty-four hundred dollars paid on the city's account to firms furnishing equipment for the ornamental illuminating system.

What Makes People Laugh. This comedian told of the time when he sought to obtain a "job" with a certain manager, who said to him, "Make me laugh if you are a comedian."

That was rather a hard one, but the comedian, equal to the occasion, replied: "I am too hungry to make you burst right out into laughter, but I can make you smile if you can lead me eighty dollars, and then don't take my address."

"The manager smiled first," continued the comedian, "but not really at me. It was the mental shock of being asked for eighty dollars, and then realizing that he didn't have to give it to me. A happy mental shock usually results in laughter, as nearly all mirth is caused by little brain surprises. There is a reason for the slapstick stuff. Just enter a street car with a certain pose, and see what happens. Why, a little innocent bobbing feather of a woman's hat, which tickles the nose of the long-suffering man next to her, is provocative of audible mirth."—"Affairs at Washington," Joe Mitchell Chapple, in National Magazine.

Same Family Name. An Irishman was seated in a railway carriage next to a very pompous-looking man, with whom he commenced a conversation in a rather free and easy manner. At length the pompous one said: "My good man, reserve your conversation for one of your own equals. I would have you know that I am a K. C. (king's counsel). The Irishman jumped up and held out his hand. "Begorra, shake!" he exclaimed, "O'm a Cassey meself!"

SMALL MARVEL OF THE SEA

Worm's Work Seems Almost to Prove It Is Equipped With Something Like Intelligence.

The question of where intelligence begins to manifest itself in the scale of animal life has often been asked. It seems to exist even in the lowest forms. A peculiar specimen of the invertebrates of the ocean, an exceedingly small worm—so small that it measures less than four millimeters in length—exhibits movements that cannot be explained by anything but intelligent will.

This midge-like worm is a constructor; he builds a rampart in the shape of a tube, composed of grains of sand. His form shows a hanging double lip jutting like a fleshy precipice over a great mouth, four black eyes set in the front of his head and two tentacles which work incessantly, wringing and lashing whatever they can reach. It is with the same apparently nervous tentacles that the little monster of the deep seizes his material, the glistening sand, of which he constructs his rampart.

He catches a grain of sand in his tentacles and immediately carries it to his mouth. In his month nature secretes a strong cement. One grain after another is covered with cement and rapidly accumulated in the form of a tube. Naturally enough, when the builder works so fast, there must be breaches in the walls. These breaches are carefully scrutinized by the worm, filled with grains of sand and covered with cement. When finished, the tube is a very practical and creditable piece of work.

Nothing could be more interesting than the little workman's management of his tentacles. Again and again he tests the solidity of his work by tapping the walls in every direction. To observe the work of this peculiar seagym is to be convinced that the tube-like rampart is not built by accident. In such work there must be the participation of some sort of mentality.

FRANCE CONSIDERING ITS RE-ORGANIZATION WHEN WAR IS CLOSED

Academy of Science Thinks Men With Training Should Be Given Share of Burden.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, Aug. 16.—French scientists have done a good deal to help the government catch up with Germany in the scientific departments of her military preparation, there is still complaint that their services have not been utilized to the best advantage, and the Academy of Sciences now poses a question as to whether men of technical training shall not have a greater share in the formidable work of reorganizing France after the war.

Henry le Chatelier, of the Institute, proposes that the Academy go to work at once to formulate the working methods best calculated to accelerate the industrial and economic recovery of the country, without waiting for politicians to decide whether the services of technical and scientific men will be accepted.

Under the parliamentary regime the presence of men not members of parliament in the government is not looked upon with favor. Premier Briand was obliged to overcome considerable resistance in order to get the chamber of deputies to accept such specialists as General Gallieni in the war department and Admiral Lacaze at the head of the navy.

"The administrations has no use for savants," is a remark attributed to the bureaucrats of the war and navy departments. Both these portfolios have been held by civilians at most critical periods of the history of the Third Republic.

Previous to the Rouvier administration in 1905, there had always been a soldier at the head of the war department with the exception of the administrations of the late president, who was, however, a technician of the highest competence. Since that period the department has been in the hands of civilians seven years out of eleven.

The navy department has been administered by a naval officer only three years out of the last twenty. The rest of the time it was in the hands of lawyers or journalists. Just prior to the Tangeur incident that threatened war, the navy was administered by a journalist and the war department by a stockbroker.

DETROIT—THE POLITICAL BATTLE GROUND OF THE WHOLE NATION

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Detroit, Aug. 16.—Detroit—political battleground of the nation! Such it is today. For the first time in its history the issues of a great campaign are being fought out by the leaders in this city of the middle west.

Roosevelt started the tide of battle Detroit ward when he came here to present preparedness. President Wilson selected the City of the Straits for his most important address of the pre-campaign period.

Charles Evans Hughes launched his campaign for the presidency here August 1.

Ask Michigan politicians why and the answer almost invariably is: "Ford."

Roosevelt came to fight the anti-militaristic movement that crystallized following Henry Ford's unexpected appearance in the results of the presidential primaries.

Wilson picked Detroit as the place for his address on Mexican relations. Politicians believe he picked Detroit because he recognized it as a representative industrial center. Then came Hughes, selecting Detroit as the scene of his first offensive move in the actual campaign. The motive of the republican nominee in picking the automobile city was practical politics. Michigan was the first state in the union to declare definitely for the ex-juggler.

A battle royal for Michigan's immense progressive vote also is indicated by the actions of the two nominees. Normally Michigan is Republican by 50,000, but four years ago the Progressives received the popular verdict, polling more than 315,000 votes, or nearly thirty-nine percent of the total.

The fight for control of this Progressive element promises to develop into one of the feature rounds of the campaign.

AUSTRALIA CAN'T MOVE SEASON'S WHEAT CROPS; BOTTOMS VERY SCARCE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Melbourne, Australia, Aug. 16.—The government's purchase of fifteen large steamships in England to be operated by the Commonwealth in the movement of Australian wheat to Europe will not go far toward solving the problems. The steamers have a total cargo capacity of 120,000 tons, but it is doubtful if they can make more than two trips each to Europe before the end of the year, as this will dispose of only 9,000,000 bushels of the huge quantity of the cereal that is awaiting shipment here.

Australia has almost 100,000,000 bushels of wheat stored in sheds or beginning to sprout in stacks where storage is unavailable in country railroad yards, and the Commonwealth's next wheat harvest is already in sight to further complicate the problem.

The government's purchase of the steamers is hailed by the Labor party with gratification, for the establishment of a government-owned fleet has long been a plank in its platform.

DUTCH ARMY OFFICER CLAIMS HE SUGGESTED UNDERSEA MERCHANTMEN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
The Hague, Netherlands, Aug. 16.—A retired Dutch army officer claims the fatherhood of the transatlantic submarine service, recently inaugurated by the "Deutschland" tonnage J. Sandberg, formerly of the Netherlands East Indian army, says that more than a year ago he addressed a letter to Admiral von Tirpitz through the German Consul-General at the Hague, setting forth the idea of breaking the British blockade by this means and recommending its execution. A copy of the letter was a few days later brought to the notice of Herr Ballin, the Managing Director of the Hamburg-American line. The latter was much taken with the plan and consulted with the competent authorities regarding its execution.

IMMENSE STATUE OF BUDDHA

Unearthed in Burma by Chance, It Is Easily the Largest Monument of Human Form in the East.

The largest monument of the human form existing in the east today, if not in the world, is the great reclining statue of Buddha, near Pegu, in Burma, around which the government has now erected a building with lattice steel pillars to protect it from the elements. This Colossus was brought to light during the construction of the railway that runs northeast from Rangoon to Mandalay, says the Wide World. While the permanent way was being banked up to protect the lines from occasional floods the engineer in charge required for the purpose of his work a harder ballast than the alluvial deposit over which the line was running could give him. Less than a mile away was a tree-clad mound, and here, it was thought, suitable material might be found. The task of clearing away some of the trees took about an hour or so, and then shafts were sunk to find the needed stone. Before the diggers had gone down more than a yard they struck an enormous and fairly preserved figure of Buddha. In actual length the statue is 180 feet and 50 feet high at the shoulder. The figure and its pedestal are of brick, covered with plaster. Since its discovery the plaster has been renewed and painted over, the box at the head and the finger nails gilded and the head decorated with glass jewels. The statue is thought to be about 500 years old, but no one knows its history, no reference whatever being made to it in Burmese legends or traditions.

Testing Diamonds.

In order to determine accurately the nature of diamonds, it is well to breathe on them; then they lose for a moment their luster, and the eye is then better enabled, says the Scientific American Supplement, to examine them and distinguish their faults. The rent diamond becomes clear much sooner than the false.

STANISLAU IS MOST IMPORTANT RAILROAD CITY OF GALICIA

Principal street of Stanislaw in Galicia.

The taking of Stanislaw was a signal victory for the Russians; it is of great strategic value, being the center of four railroad systems and containing terminal facilities, with railroad shops. The Russians will be able to use two of the railroad lines for transporting supplies and establishing communication along their front. The other lines lead to Przemyśl and Lemberg.

Before the war the city of Stanislaw was very beautiful, filled with the pretty homes of foreigners and quaint architectural expressions of the Austrian home builder. At the present time it is in the state of turmoil and desolation usually attendant upon a city being in a state of siege for some time, and showing the effects of shell fire.

NEWS NOTES—MOVIELAND

BY DAILY DEAN

Charlotte Burton, vampire, complains that people are confusing her acting with her real character. In other words when film fans see her in the role of a deep-dyed villainess they are more than likely to go away thinking what a terror Miss Burton must be off the stage. Charlotte doesn't like this, and says that only persons who have character can successfully play the role of vampire.

Miss Burton's next picture will be "The Torch Bearer." William Russell is the featured player in this multiple-reel production, but Miss Burton and Harry Kernan are cast for prominent parts.

HOW SOME STARS STARTED LIFE.

Motion picture actors, for the most part, have the virtues and vices of the great American public. Their lives, their careers, their pasts and their futures come quite close to being the great average of the public before whom they appear on the screen.

Take these stars for example: William Farnum, the $100,000 star who has hundreds of thousands of admirers, was the boy cornetist of Buckport, Maine. Unquestionably cornet playing can be ranked as one of the vices; a quite common one, in fact.

Virginia Pearson at the age of eighteen was the chief of the Book-lovers Library of Louisville, Ky., her native city.

Warner Oland, villain par excellence, was professor of dramatic literature at Williams college, a contemporary of Prof. Harry Thurston Peck, and as sober in his dramatic tastes as Winthrop Ames.

Clairmont, girl of modern pictures, was a model in a Fifth Avenue (New York) hat shop.

Stuart Holmes, now a debonair villain, was an equally debonair soda clerk in a Chicago drug store.

Annette Kellerman gave swimming lessons for women and got a weekly wage of $15.

George Walsh, just coming into prominence as a featured player in his brother's personally directed pictures, was a baseball pitcher at Georgetown University.

Before Myrtle Stedman decided to become an actress she studied elocution.

Charlotte Burton

tion and voice culture in Chicago, having a beautiful voice trained for the operatic stage. She appeared as prima donna with the Whitney Opera Company in musical comedy, touring the entire west. Miss Stedman has a wealth of golden hair and blue eyes, and is active as an outdoor girl, and especially fond of gardening.

Jay Belasco, cousin of the noted stage genius and portrayer of unusual types, accomplished an unusual task recently for Robert Henley. Henley had received a letter from a screen admirer in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, written in Portuguese, and Belasco translated it. Jay is of part Portuguese descent and speaks not only that language but French, Spanish, German and Italian.

AT THE BEVERLY TONIGHT.

Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance." Billie Burke, fascinating star of the newest motion picture novel, "Gloria's Romance," from the pens of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes has already discovered that dressing for the screen is an art entirely by itself, for of course you are aware that colors on the speaking stage and on the screen do not register at all alike. Colors, Miss Burke knows, have a wonderful bit to do in creating impressions; for who, for instance, would suspect one of being a vampire if gowned in a white, frilly dress with ribbons; or how could a heroine ever be convincing in a wicked-looking scarlet gown? And doesn't the very appearance on the stage of a woman clad in a slinky, green-gangled clinging robe suggest treachery? Of course it does. And that is why one has to take infinite pains when working in pictures where one is deprived entirely of the ability to convey character by color.

"The Struggle." Frank Sheridan, that stellar actor whose work on the screen has brought him great praise, will be seen in this city at the Beverly tonight when "The Struggle," the wonderful Equitable feature of love for a woman between friends, the desperate intrigues of a woman to gain the love she seeks, and the final triumph of love over many obstacles is a mere outline of the story which carries the audience on edge from beginning to end.

AT THE BEVERLY THURSDAY.

Robert Edeson in "Fathers of Men." The famous legitimate star, Robert Edeson, plays the lead in the new Blue Ribbon Feature to be released in six parts Thursday at the Beverly, "Fathers of Men."

In this production Mr. Edeson plays a dual role—that of John Howland, the father and Robert Howland—the son, grown up. He does this with that touch of artistry that has won him renown and fame behind the footlights.

The characters call for strong, dramatic acting and Mr. Edeson gives his best in their portrayal. The man of the great northern woods, who lives in the open—who knows no law except the law of what is right and wrong in his sight, is made a living, breathing person by this favorite as the story slowly takes a grip upon the audience.

Deutschland Pictures. As an extra feature Thursday the Beverly will show the German submarine, "Deutschland" leaving Baltimore, homeward bound.

AT MYER'S THEATRE.

"September Morn" comes to the Myer's Theatre tonight for an engagement of one night with its half hundred talented artists including a chorus of remarkably pretty girls composing one of the best singing and dancing ensembles ever offered in musical comedy. Fun runs rampant in "September Morn" from the first curtain and entrance of that splendid funmaker Wm. Moore, who has the part of his life and who is ably assisted by a cast of representative musical comedy purveyors. This is

Le Conte and Fiesher's biggest production and they have fairly outdone themselves in casting and mounting this popular merry affair.

Ruth Wilkins, chick and charming, imbues "September Morn" with an airy freshness that is charming. Maud K. Williams, Leslie Jones, James Baber, J. J. Patton and Billy Murphy are also members of this company along with the other favorites who will appear in "September Morn" at the La Salle Opera-House, Chicago.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) We are two girls sixteen and seventeen years old and are considered very good looking among our friends, only we have freckles. Could you recommend something harmless to the skin that would remove them? Do you think lemon juice would be good.

(2) What would you say to a man forty-five years old who, when he is drunk, tells us in his silly way how well he likes us and how pretty we are?

(3) What is good to put in the rinse water when washing oily hair to keep it from being oily?

(4) Would it be proper for us to motor to a dance at a neighboring town with two young men of our own age?

(5) What is good to make finger nails grow nicely?

(6) Is it proper for us to go in bathing with two gentlemen friends and let them see when there are others in the water?

(7) What is good for yellow and coated teeth?

(8) What is good for a greasy complexion?

Household Hints

PUT YOUR KITCHEN TABLE ON WHEELS.

Have a table that can easily be wheeled about the kitchen, pantry or dining room. A small drop-leaf table that will pass through an ordinary door when leaves are folded, is ideal when furnished with large, easy running casters.

Upon such a table all the materials for a meal may be wheeled from the pantry or storeroom to the kitchen at one trip. Upon it goes the finished dinner to be wheeled from stove to dining table. Covered with a neat cloth, it is attractive for holding the dessert so that the hostess need not leave her place in serving it. When the meal is over, the table may be cleared in one or two trips.

Vinegar Pie—One egg, one large tablespoonful flour, one cup sugar; beat together, add tablespoonful vinegar, one cup cold water and flour with nutmeg. Bake with two crusts.

A MENDING HELP. Many women, especially mothers with large families, are without a darned day to find proper mates for each stocking. Try sewing a hook to the top of one stocking and an eye on the other. Then teach the children to fasten them together each time they are taken off. On wash day the stockings can be thrown over the line, saving that tedious time of pinning and on darning day are always mated properly. This method is quite a time saver.

CUCUMBER RELISH. Twelve large cucumbers, pared and sliced, three onions, put in salt water overnight, take one quart of vinegar, three tablespoons prepared mustard, one teaspoon celery seed, one cup brown sugar, two tablespoons flour, mix and bring to boil; add cucumbers and onions and seal hot.

CLAM FRAPPE. Steam clam chowder thoroughly until they open. Drain, let the water stand until clear, pour off the sediment and stir in clam juice, lemon juice and salt.

THE TABLE. Berry Custard Pie—Any kind of berry, three onions, put in salt water overnight, take one quart of vinegar, three tablespoons prepared mustard, one teaspoon celery seed, one cup brown sugar, two tablespoons flour, mix and bring to boil; add cucumbers and onions and seal hot.

Training a Husband. "Marian, our train goes in an hour and a half. How much more have you got to do to get ready?" Morris Southy breezed into the room where his wife was sweeping up the packing case had been removed. "Never mind about the floor. They will have to clean the house anyway."

"Well, I suppose you know that if we miss the train to Grandport, we shall have a big hotel bill to pay and we can't afford that," Morris was dressed for the trip and it did not occur to him to help pick up the papers and wads of excelsior on the floor.

"You might get the boys in and wash them. The towels and wash-rags are in the suit case," suggested Marian.

"We do it so much better than I do, I think I will let you do that," Morris began to walk up and down the empty room and whistle.

"Can you empty this basket of trash?" His wife pushed a basket stuffed with excelsior and paper toward him.

"Why, Marian, I have on my good suit. I can't get it all covered with that stuff," Morris' voice showed great annoyance. Two red spots turned in Marian's cheeks but she said nothing.

"After she had emptied the basket, Morris looked at his watch and announced that only an hour and ten minutes remained before train time.

"Call the boys," she said as she slipped into the bedroom where the baby was sleeping in his little cot.

The boys arrived with a whoop and a flourish that waked the baby and set him to crying and ten precious minutes were consumed in consoling him. Robert washed himself, and put on his clean clothes while Marian gave her attention to the other children.

"What a time it takes to get ready!" Marian made her train.

SIDE TALKS

THE TEACHER RESPONSIBLE. "But why did you go when you knew you were too tired?" asked the husband.

The wife in the case had put the finishing touch to a condition of utter haggardness by going on a tiresome, half-day journey with her husband, and had been taken ill and ordered to her bed for a complete rest by the doctor.

"I thought you'd be so upset if I didn't, thought you'd say I never wanted to go anywhere," she said.

"That's foolish! I didn't insist on your going, did I? What did I say to make you feel that way?"

"Nothing yesterday. It's what you have said before that I didn't go."

"I call that unreasonable," said the husband, "to make yourself sick going this time because some other time I wanted you to go."

"Do you think it was unreasonable, reader friend?"

"I don't. On the contrary, I think it was absolutely logical. The only way she had of judging what he would do in this particular time was by what he had done in times past."

Then We Blame Them For Knowing The Lesson. We are all teachers. We teach other people what to expect of us. And then, like as not, when they have learned their lesson, we blame them for knowing it.

I know a woman who is very cautious. Her life is motivated by fears of one sort or another. Naturally when she does anything out of the ordinary, her household folk it is because she is actuated by some fear. Sometimes this is not the real motive and then she is very indignant at the suspicion. But she has a reason. They are only repeating the lesson she has taught them.

Each Deed is Judged by Other Deeds. Our relations with other people are not determined by isolated acts. There is no such thing as an isolated act. Each day is filled with little deeds that build up a conception of our character in the minds of each person with whom we come into contact, and each little deed is in turn judged in the light of that conception.

Are You for "Preparedness?" The best preparedness for man or woman comes from living in harmony with law. In Summer cut out the heavy foods that tax strength. Eat Shredded Wheat Biscuit, the food that contains all the body-building material in the whole wheat grain in a digestible form. For breakfast with milk or cream; for luncheon with berries or other fruits.

Anita Stewart Says

BALANCE

Perhaps the old reliable "Webster's" would not give the definition of "balance" as I want it to be understood. I mean to define just how uncertain a person remains in desire and in the balance between the ages of thirteen and sixteen. One has not acquired "balance." That is, one's not thoroughly developed. One is not sure just what one wants. But if one tries at this age, one may mold one's life into a wonderfully beautiful form.

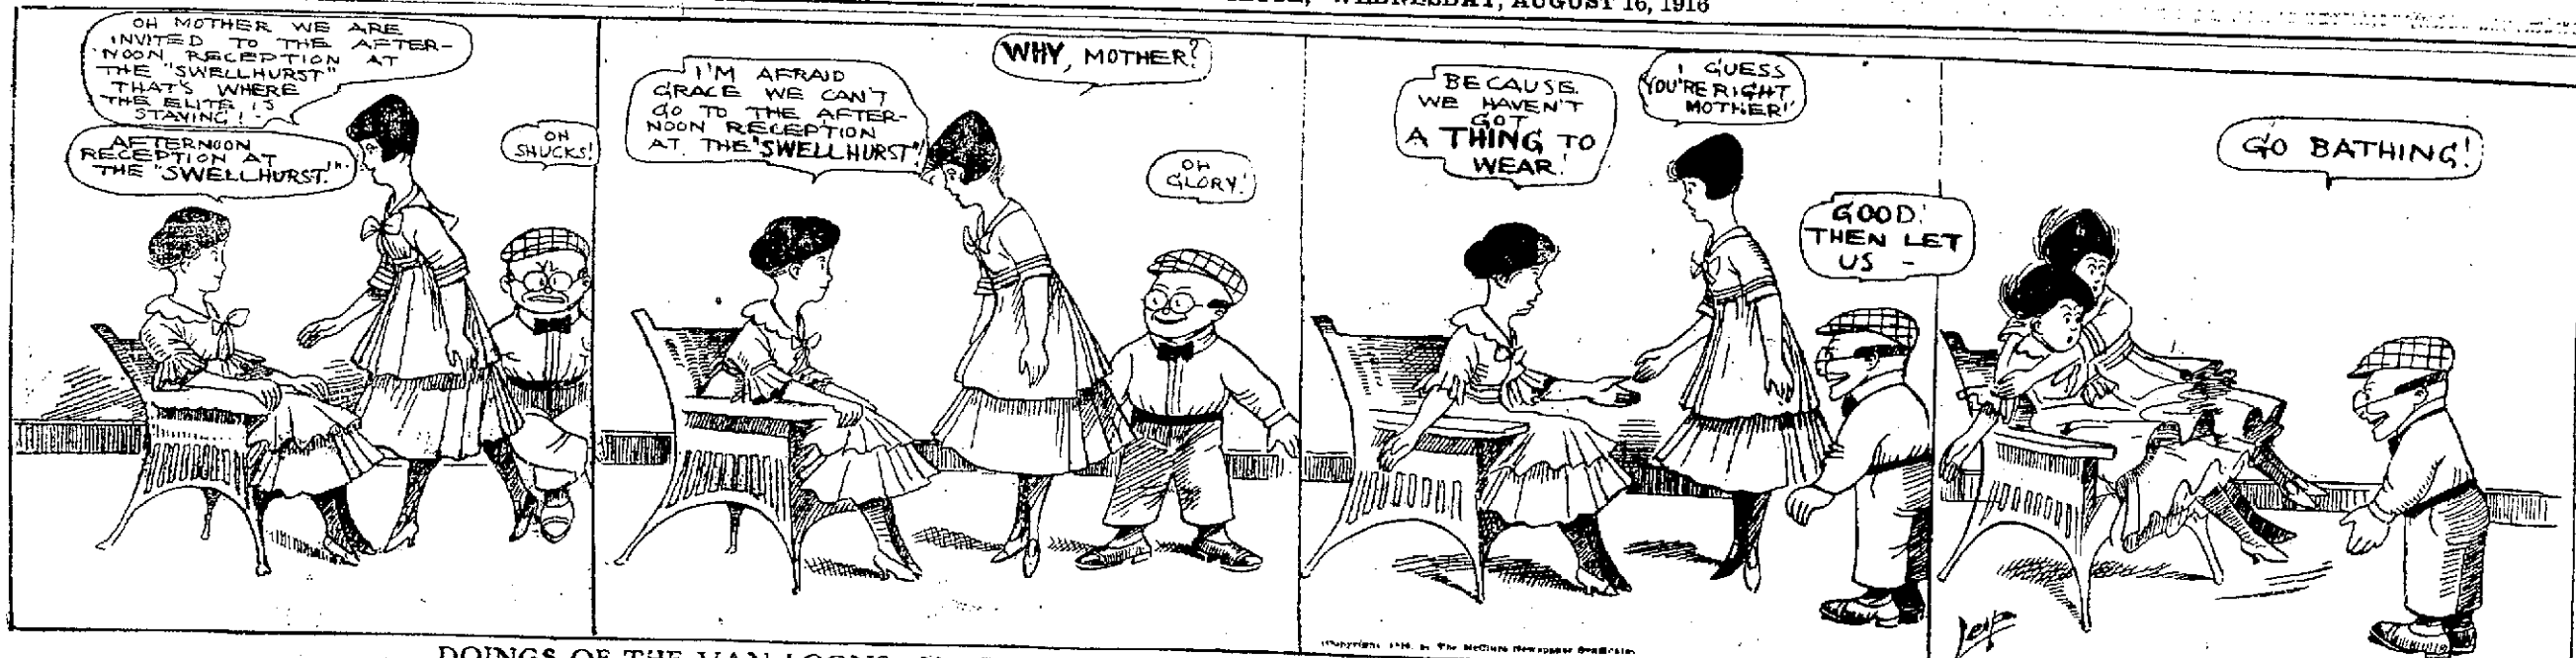

Just as the clay which a sculptor uses is sometimes too soft and sometimes too hard, so in our lives we cannot always mold our characters as we desire. A child under thirteen is a bit too young to mold permanently into a beautiful character, although the early training may greatly influence the later life. A person over sixteen has no time to waste if a change is to be made in characteristics. But between these ages is an ideal time to acquire "balance."

Have you ever heard the harsh expression, "the foolish school girl age?" It is meant to define just this period of betwixt and between, when one desires one way or another. Girls, particularly, in this period possesses a desire to "show off," which is irrepressible. They are not to blame for this. In fact it is but human nature. All of us have traveled through it, and it is the transient period. To use a practical expression, it is a period of broad dough. Just as this undergoes a period which is decidedly perilous and which decides whether the finished loaf is to be light and feathery or soggy and heavy, a person undergoes a period which decides whether the character shall be broad and uplifting or narrow and degrading.

All of us have realized at some time in our lives that we have changed. All of us have noted this marked change in a friend or acquaintance. It has not always taken place during the period of which I am speaking, but it is found to happen then more than in any one other time of life.

No one can do more in moulding your character than yourself. It is primarily a matter to be worked out by the person concerned. Let children and parents realize this great responsibility and make the most out of it.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Yes, There's No Need of Mother Missing Everything

BY F. LEIPZIGER

The Auction Block

By REX BEACH

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

There came a time when Bob could no longer dance—when, in fact, he could barely walk—and then it was that Jim proposed leaving. Bob readily agreed—having reached a condition of mellowness where he agreed enthusiastically to anything—and Lorelei was only too glad to depart. She had witnessed the pitiful breaking down of Bob's faculties with a curious blending of concern and dismay, but her protests had gone unheeded. Having had a glimpse of his real self earlier in the evening, and being wise in the ways of temperance, she felt only pity for him now as the three made their way downstairs.

While Jim went in search of their belongings, Bob propped himself against the wall and regarded her admiringly through eyes that were dimmed and unfocused.

"Fairy princess, you are more adorable every minute," he said, thickly. "Yes! A thousand yeses. And I'm your little friend, eh? No more slaps, no more mysterious exits, what?"

"That depends upon you," he replied. "I'm behaving finely," he boasted. "I usually act much worse than I have tonight, but I like you. I like you differently—understand? Not like the other girls. You're so beautiful! Makes me dizzy. You forgive my little joke eh?"

"What joke?" "Meeting you the way I did tonight. Jim's nice boy—obliged to him." "I see. Then it was all planned?" "He nodded vehemently and nearly lost his balance."

"How much—did you pay him?" Lorelei queried, with difficulty. "Mr. Wharton waved his hand in a magnificent gesture. 'What's money, anyhow? Somebody's bound to get it.' 'Fifty dollars?'"

"He looked at her reproachfully. 'That's an insult to Jim—he's a business man, he is. More than that—Oh, yes, and I'll take care of him again—this very night. I'll stake him. He knows a place.'"

"Will you do me a favor?" she asked, after a pause. "Wharton assured her with abnormal emphasis that her lightest wish was law."

"Then go straight home from here," she pleaded. "I say, that's not fair," Bob looked indignantly shocked. "I promised Jim—Wouldn't have me break a sacred promise, would you? We're expected—A little game all arranged where we can bust it quick. If you hear a loud noise—that'll be Melcher going broke."

"Melcher?" Lorelei looked sharply at her brother, who was approaching with her wraps, and noted that he was perfectly sober. A moment later she checked Bob in the act of giving directions to the cab driver.

"Wait. Where do you live, Mr. Wharton?" "The Charlevoix." It was the most expensive bachelor apartment building in the city.

"Drive to the Charlevoix," she told the chauffeur. "Hold on, sis," cried Jim. "We're going to take you home first."

"No." "But—" Jim saw in his sister's face something that brought a smothered oath to his lips. Drawing her out of hearing, he muttered, angrily, "Mind your own business; I've got something on."

"I know you have," she met his eyes unflinchingly. "But you shan't rob him."

Jim thrust his thin face close to hers, and she saw that it was distorted with rage. "If you don't want to go home, stay here. He's going with me."

"We'll see." She turned, but he seized her roughly. "What are you going to do?" he demanded.

"I'm going to tell him he's being taken to a crooked gambling house, and that you're working for Max Melcher. He isn't too drunk to understand that."

Her brother clenched his fist menacingly, but she did not recoil, and he thought better of his impulse. "Are you grand-standing?" he queried, brutally. "Are you stuck on the

"Are You Stuck on the Bob?"

Without reply she walked back to the cab, redirected the driver to the Charlevoix, then seated herself beside Wharton, who was already sinking into a stupor. Jim slunk in behind her, and they were whirled southward.

It was a silent ride, for the besotted young millionaire slept, and Jim dared not trust himself to speak. Lorelei closed her eyes, nauseated, disillusioned, miserable, seeing more clearly than ever the depths into which she had unwittingly sunk, and the intimacy to which Jim had descended.

At his hotel Wharton roused himself, and Lorelei sent him racing into the vestibule. Then she and Jim turned homeward through the deserted streets.

CHAPTER XI.

During the last act of the matinee on the day following Lorelei was surprised to receive a call from John Merkle. "The Judge" led him to her dressing room, then shuffled away, leaving him alone with her and Mrs. Croft.

"I hope I haven't broken any rules by dropping in during your office hours," he began.

"Theatrical rules are made to be broken; but I do think that you are indiscreet. Don't you?"

The banker had been using his eyes with an interest that betrayed his unfamiliarity with these surroundings. "I was on my way uptown and preferred not to telephone." He looked meaningfully at Croft and Lorelei, interpreting his glance, sent the dresser from the room on some errand. "Well, the game worked," said Merkle. "Mrs. Hammon has left home and commenced suit for divorce. If our friend Miss Lynn had set out to ruin Jarvis socially—and perhaps financially—she couldn't have played her cards better."

"Is that what you came to tell me?" Merkle hesitated. "No," he admitted. "It isn't; but I'm a bit embarrassed now that I'm here. I suppose your mother told about seeing me?"

"My mother?" Lorelei's amazement was convincing, and his keen eyes softened. "When did you see mother? Where?"

"Yesterday, at my office. Didn't you know that she and your brother had called?"

Lorelei shook her head; she felt sick with dread of his next words. "It was very unpleasant. I fear, for all of us."

"What did they want?" The girl was still smiling, but her lips beneath the paint were dry.

"They felt that I had—er—involved you in a great deal of notoriety. From what they said I judged that you shared their feelings." He paused awkwardly once more, and she motioned him to continue. "We didn't get on very well, especially your brother and I; for he presumed to—criticize my relations with you and—er—my motive in taking you to ride the other night. I believe I was quite rude to him; in fact, I had the watchman eject him, not daring to trust myself."

"They asked for—money?" Lorelei averted her face, for she could not bear to meet his frank eyes.

"Yes—what I considered a great deal of money. I understood they represented you. They didn't insist, however; they offered me a choice."

"Choice! Of what?" "Well—I inferred that marriage would undo the wrong I had—"

"Oh—h!" Lorelei rose with a gasp. "Bravely she stilled the tremor of her lips. 'Tell me—the rest.'"

"There isn't much more. Your mother was quite hysterical and—noisy. Today a lawyer came to see me. He offers to settle the whole matter, but I prefer dealing directly with you."

"Do you think I knew anything about it?" she cried, indignantly. "No, I do not think so now. Yesterday I was too much surprised and too angry to know just what I did think. It's perfectly true, however, that I was to blame for the unfortunate outcome of the ride, and I want to make amends for any injury."

" weren't you injured, too, by the publicity?" Merkle showed his teeth in a mischievous smile.

"That's neither here nor there." "Please—leave me, and—let me think this over. I must do something quickly, or—I'll smother."

"I'm glad I came," said he, rising. "I'm glad I made sure."

"So am I. What you have told me has made a great difference in—everything. Don't allow them to—"

She hesitated and her voice broke. "I can't say it. You must think I'm—unspeakable."

He shook his head gravely. "No, I merely think you are very unfortunate. I think you need help more than any girl I ever knew."

"I do, I do." "But I am not the one to give it—at least not the kind of help you need."

"I'll need help more than ever—after tonight."

"Yes? Why?" "Because I'm going to leave home."

Lorelei's head was up, and she spoke with a note of defiance. "Then, perhaps I can do something."

He scented himself again. "You will need money."

"Oh, no. I have my salary and the other revenues you know about. I have kept my family for two years."

"Work won't hurt you, but why force yourself to go on with those other things? They're not to your liking, I'm sure."

"My mother and father must live. There isn't enough—don't you see? There just isn't enough for all of us unless I—grift like the other girls."

Merkle broke out impatiently. "Make an end of it. I'll finance you." She laughed a little harshly. "Don't think for an instant that I'd venture to expect anything in return. I won't trouble you; I won't even see you. Nobody will ever know. I wouldn't

"Make an End of It. I'll Finance You."

miss the money, and I'd really love to do it. You tried to do me a favor—" "There's no use arguing."

"Well, don't be stubborn or hasty. You could use—say, ten thousand dollars. It would keep you going very nicely, and really it's only the price of a new auto."

"Why do you offer me so much?" she asked, curiously.

"Because I like you— Oh, I mean like, not love! Because I think you're good and will need money to remain good. You're not an ordinary woman. Miss Knight; you can't live as ordinary women live, now that you're famous. New York won't let you."

"You're very kind, and generous after all that has occurred and after knowing my reason for being here."

"My dear child, you didn't choose your family, and as for the other, the women of my set marry for money, just as you plan to do. So do women everywhere, for that matter, and many of them make excellent wives—yes, far better than if they had married poor men. Few girls as beautiful as you in any walk of life are allowed to marry for love. Trust me, a woman like you, if she lives up to the obligations of wifehood, deserves better than one who takes a man for love and then perhaps goes back on her bargain. Will you accept my offer?" "No. But I thank you."

"Think it over; there is no hurry, and remember I want to help." With one of his infrequent, wan smiles, he extended his hand, and Lorelei grasped it warmly, though her face was set and strained.

She was far too well balanced for hasty resolutions, but her mind, once made up, was seldom changed. It distressed her grievously to leave her people, but at the thought of remaining longer with them every instinct rebelled. Her own kin, urged by greed, had not hesitated to cheapen and degrade her; their last offense, coupled with all that had gone before, was more than could be borne. Yet she was less resentful than sad, for it seemed to her that this was the beginning of the end. First the father had been crippled, then the moral fiber of the whole family had disintegrated until the mother had become a harpy, the brother a scamp, and she, Lorelei, a shameless hunter of men. Now the home, that last bond of respectability, was to be broken.

Her first impulse was to take up her abode with Adoree Demorest, but a little thought showed the inadvisability of that. In her doubt she appealed to Lilius, broaching the subject as the two girls were, dressing after the performance.

"When Lorelei had made known her decision, the other girl nodded her approval."

"I don't blame you a bit; a girl needs liberty. I have five rooms, and a Jap to take care of them; they're lovely."

"I can't afford an expensive place."

"Well, there are some three-room flats in the rear, and—I have it! Gerlie Moore kept one, but she's gone on the road. It's all furnished, too. If it hasn't been snubbed you can get it at your own terms. The building is respectable, too; it's as proper as the Ritz. I'm dining alone tonight. Come to dinner with me and we'll find out all about it."

Lorelei would have preferred a different location, not particularly desiring to be near Lilius; but there was no time in which to look about, and the necessity that faced her made any assistance welcome. Without more discussions she agreed, and the two girls rode uptown together.

The Elegancia, where Lilius lived, was a painfully new, overelaborate building, with a Gothic front and a Gotham rear—half its windows pasted with rental signs. Six potted palms, a Turkish rug and a jaundiced Jamaican elevator boy gave an air of welcome to the ornate marble entrance hall.

Lilius fitted a key to the first door on the right as they went in, explaining, "I'm on the ground floor, and find it very convenient."

Everyday Wisdom

HAT RACKS. The hat rack is a pitiable figure, long, lank, lonesome, double-ended quadruped that it is. Year in and year out, it stands in the doorway of the front hall and waits and serves and says nothing, hearing everything, watching everybody pass, but never getting a smile nor a word of thanks from anyone. It catches the chatter of the coming guest, and the endless, dragged-out departures of the departing. It knows, from long practice how much honesty there is in an invitation to the guest to return soon, and whether or not it will be followed by a "Thank heaven, they are gone!" as soon as the door is shut. A hat rack sees life. But it does not participate—that is the pitiable part! It simply stands and observes, making its own philosophy of life, thinking, thinking, thinking, and knowing nothing of the thrill of action, the joy of doing, the forgetfulness to be found in strong or tedious work, or of the narrowness to be overcome through roaming through the world. It simply stands and thinks.

How a hat rack must want to ask questions of the hats that hang on its home! "What has gone on in this black bowl of a derby this afternoon?" A hat rack could get some interesting and most intimate confidences if hats could talk, hats that have hung on a real skull all day and hang on the hat rack for a substitute skull during the long night. Sometimes a hat rack must stay to itself. "Well, this has been a warm brain from which this hat has just come, a feverish temple, so help me, either from love or anger or from some such triviality with which these humans get hot." And that is all it can know.

Small boys love dogs, goats, raccoons and other four-footed animals of the town and country, but will have nothing whatever to do with a hat rack. It is a strange antipathy that exists between small boys and hat racks. Mothers cannot drive them into a friendship, or only after years of patience. After all, a hat rack is a rite. A man who hangs his hat on a rack is highly civilized, and in some homes it is not done.

Southern Phrase Explained. Melittus tells us that it makes him mad whenever he sees some writer using the old southern phrase, "the spit an' image" without showing any knowledge of what it means. Melittus says that he has even seen it spelled thus—"The spittin' image." So we have seen in the works of an English novelist:

"He's the spit and image of his father, as they say in America."

And an American short-story writer makes a negro character say: "Tassuh. He's de spittin' image of his ma!"

The phrase was originally "the spit and image," explains Melittus. Of course that means that one person is both mentally and physically like another. Southern people are careless about their r's, so the phrase became "the spitt' an' image." Hence, of course, "the spit an' image" and "the spiran' image."—Louisville Courier.

Dinner Stories

In the absence of her husband the fascinating young married woman went boating with an old admirer. "Ah," sighed the old admirer, "if only you had married me instead of Wilkinson."

"Then I should have been with Mr. Wilkinson at this moment instead of you," said the fascinating woman. "How strangely things turn out!"

To an official of the bureau of fisheries at Washington, who is an authority on trout, trout-fishing, trout disease, and all things "trouty," some one sent a fine brown trout. The fish was duly admired, cooked, eaten, and voted excellent.

But shortly after the authority on trout was somewhat upset by a letter from the donor of the fish. It read: "Some days ago I sent you a large brown trout. Will you kindly oblige by having same examined and analyzed and let me know as soon as possible what it did off?"

"Did you hear about the defacement of Mr. Skinner's tombstone?" asked Mr. Brown a few days after the funeral of that eminent captain of industry.

"No; what was it?" inquired his neighbor, curiously. "Someone added the word 'friends' to the epitaph."

"What was the epitaph?" "He did his best!"

As a pleasant-faced woman passed the corner Jones touched his hat to her and remarked feelingly to his companion: "Ah, my boy, I owe a great deal to that woman."

"Your mother?" was the query. "No, my landlady."

The Hard Task. Many a man who prides himself on his physical strength cannot even hold his tongue.—Judge.

RACINE FEDS PLAY CARDINALS SUNDAY

Belle City Team to Recopen Cardinal Schedule Here—Have Old Leaguers in Lineup.

After a three week's lay-off the Racine Cardinals will get in action Sunday. The Cardinals will be their opponents and the game will be played on the local diamond at the Driving Park.

The almost a month vacation is expected by followers of the Cardinals to put the team in good shape as the majority of the players have been "filling in" with other teams in this section.

What the Cardinals can offer is unknown locally. Reports from the Belle City however indicate that they are a formidable aggregation and one worth going to see. Their lineup is composed of old W.L. Northern and Lake Shore league players.

Practically the same old Cardinal lineup as in former games will take the field Sunday. Manager Caldwell is undecided as to who will do the righting but several of the old stand-bys will be in the Janesville trench.

RUTH BEATS JOHNSON IN THIRTEENTH, 1-0

Walter Still on Toboggan and Drops Long Battle to Boston's Babe; Boston Gets Seven Hits.

Babe Ruth came out the victor in a thirteen inning pitching duel with Walter Johnson on Tuesday, the Boston Americans defeating Washington in the latter's final appearance at Fenway park this season, 1 to 0.

For twelve innings Johnson held the Red Sox four widely scattered hits. The thirteenth session was his undoing, the champions' first hit in this inning, being the game's only run.

Barry left off with a scratch hit. Lewis struck out and Hobbittz fled to Milan. Walker singled to center, Barry making third on the play. Gardner connected for his third hit of the day with a single to center, and Barry scored. Three fast double plays by Boston in the last four innings prevented Washington from scoring.

GRAND OLD ROMAN FIFTY-EIGHT TODAY

Charles A. Comiskey, White Sox Owner Has a Birthday.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—One of the greatest men in baseball was born in this city fifty-eight years ago today. He is Charles Albert Comiskey, known from coast to coast as the "Grand Old Roman."

Mr. Comiskey is president and owner of the Chicago White Sox, the club which at this time is battling for the lead in the American league. "Commy" was born August 15, 1858. He played ball when he was seven years of age. He at one time was a pitcher for the Elgin, Ill. club, later he played third base and first base, but as a first baseman he has no superior. He is the only player who has risen from the ranks to be sole owner of a major league ball club.

Comiskey's real baseball career began in 1875 with the Dubuque, Ia. team. In 1882 he joined the St. Louis Browns, then in the American Association, and in 1883 he was made manager of the team. In 1885-1886 the Browns, with Comiskey at the helm, defeated the Chicago White Stockings for the championship of the world.

Comiskey remained with St. Louis until 1890, when he took charge of the Players' league club in Chicago. He returned to St. Louis in 1891 and in 1892 went to Cincinnati, where he was responsible for the aid of Mr. Ban B. Johnson, a newspaper man, and the two became fast friends. In 1895 "Commy" places a Western League team in St. Paul and in 1900 he transferred the franchise to Chicago, where with the aid of Mr. Johnson, the Western league was expanded and became known as the American league, with Mr. Johnson at its head.

Under Mr. Comiskey's ownership the Chicago White Sox, as his team became known have won three American league championships and one world's championship. As a big league magnate he is hailed everywhere as the prince of club owners. In the winter of 1913-1914, he and Manager McGraw of the New York Giants, financed the round-the-world tour with a large number of ball players, playing our national pastime in Australia, Japan, where the game has taken a hold on the populace, in Manila, and London, Eng., where King Edward was an interested spectator, and many other places. The receptions given to the world tourists upon their return at New York and in Chicago were events which will not soon be forgotten.

Art Wilson, the Pirate catcher, who recently went to the Cubs in the much discussed Schulte deal is rumored to be booked as a probable successor to Joe Tinker whose prestige in Chicago has suffered some since the forfeited game of a while ago. Moreover there is the belief among Chicago officials that the Cubs should be leading the National league.

MORRIS MILLER

Columbus in the A. A. does not seem greatly enthused over the acquisition of Cy Pieh, the idea being that a pitcher who couldn't make good in the International won't be much of a help to an Association team. Louisville felt the same way about Bill Rittler and sent him back to the Giants.

News that the Columbus club was on the market surprised no one. It was stated last spring that unless the team was a winner and the fans turned out to give the owners a chance to recuperate some of their losses they would get out of baseball, and that seems to be just what they are doing.

Manager Bill Clymer of Louisville is bound to have a pitching staff if he has to take everything the New York Giants can discard. Having secured Schauer and Rittler, he finally has induced Ralph Stroud to report. Stroud wanted to go back to the coast but Louisville insisted so hard that he finally agreed to report to the Colonels.

The Columbus club thought it had landed two pitching prospects in Coffindaffer and Carpenter, left out of jobs when the Ohio State league blew up, but the Pittsburgh Nationals stepped in and grabbed them as free agents, before the Columbus club could get their names to the papers. Then it transferred Coffindaffer to Minneapolis.

According to a report from Minneapolis, Third Baseman Wallace Smith of the Millers in a very sick man. He was taken ill with typhoid fever, which has developed into tuberculosis, and it is said his days as a player are done. It is hard to believe, for until a year ago Smith was as robust an athlete as one could find in a day's journey.

Toledo fans, as a result of one of them throwing the pop-bottle which knocked Umpire George Johnston unconscious, will either go without drinks during games or have them served in paper bottles, according to the officials of the club. Toledo fans have been acting so ugly lately one wonders if their soda water hasn't been spiked.

Wade Kilfer will be known as the Giant who never won the New York lottery. John McGraw sent him to his horse in Michigan to await orders when he reported and he then was sent to Louisville without even getting a glimpse of the Polo grounds as his "home."

John Evers, in the first game of the Braves at home after his recent suspension, managed to get into another row. Ordered off for disputing a strike, he stopped at third base to pay his respects to Reilly Zeider. The Cubs' third baseman responded by shouldering Evers over the coaching line. Then the two went at it and it might have been a dandy little lightweight scrap had not Umpire Eason called time.

The Chicago Cubs are like the worker who sold a million bushels of wheat he didn't have and couldn't get. The Cubs promised several players to Kansas City for Wortman and seven more to Indianapolis for Kelly and Carter. They managed to deliver Mulligan (a cripple) to Kansas City and Zwilling to Indianapolis, but can't fill the orders for the other players. Both Kansas City and Indianapolis are complaining as a result.

DUTCH FISHERMEN REAP GOLDEN HERRING HARVEST NO GERMAN-ENGLISH BOATS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Vlaardingen, Netherlands, Aug. 16.—Although the real herring fishing season has not yet begun, Dutch fishermen are already reaping a golden harvest, as a result of the absence of British fishing fleets from the North sea and of the enormously high price obtainable in Germany for the catches. One fortunate man has brought in a catch of herring estimated at a value of $14,000, or three times as much as its owners make in the whole of a normal year. The great bulk of the exports goes to Germany.

JUST FORM OF WANDERLUST

Woman's Propensity for Bargain Hunting Explained by Scientist Who Has Studied the Subject.

Too long has mere man scorned the female bargain hunter, says the New York Press. Too long has he smiled indulgently or gently rallied the woman who indulges in the wild scramble for the foot-wearing pilgrimage after a "marked-down-from" to some odd-forged price just under the currency unit.

These same men have been proud of what they termed their "wanderlust." Proud have they been to recount to admiring youngsters how they ran away to sea, or took to braving on the railroad, or chased away to some Pan-American opportunity for getting rich quick.

Along comes Prof. Max Baft, blunt and to the point as to his name, and pronounces that bargain hunting is simply another form of wander

Holland's Citizen Soldierry On Par With That of Swiss

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—Switzerland's system of citizen soldierry preparedness has been a subject of wide exploitation since the outbreak of the European war, but little has been written about the manner in which this diminutive country safeguards her national integrity, surrounded as she is on practically all sides by powerful neighbors. A graphic and authoritative account of the citizen army of the Dutch among the Goliaths of Europe is given in a communication to the National Geographic Society from Hendrik Willem Van Loon, a part of which is issued today as a war geography bulletin from the Society's Washington headquarters.

"The Holland which we are all familiar is a picturesque combination of dikes and windmills, smiling girls with pretty lace caps, and very small boys with very big cigars. There is another side to this picture to which we have paid little attention; that is the Holland of the modern merchant and the modern scientist—a small bit of land teeming with industry and busy with a thousand different kinds of country administration, a vast colonial empire without the use of a large military establishment and capturing Nobel prizes at a most enviable rate.

Successful With Peace.
"The modern Kingdom, with its harbors and its vast foreign trade, forms a small but concise national unit in the midst of very powerful neighbors, who for two years have been engaged in the most gigantic of all wars. Yet Holland has managed to keep out of the struggle with insignificant success. It was able to do this because in a military sense it was fully prepared for all eventualities.

"The Kingdom of Belgium was not prepared for war and it was invaded and overrun by a hostile army. The Netherlands, although smaller in number of inhabitants, had the entire armament of its male population at the frontier for forty-eight hours before any of the other nations of Europe mobilized. As a result the neutrality of the country has been rigorously respected.

Start at Nineteen.
"From the year 1813 on, every boy of nineteen in the Kingdom has been obliged to prepare for military service. It is not desirable to give the exact number of soldiers in the army, which has been mobilized since July of the year 1914. But in a general way we can state that every male being in the country who is of good physical condition and who can walk with a gun across his shoulders has in some direct or indirect fashion given part of his time and his services for the benefit of his country. The old law, which made an exception for young sons, was rescinded several years ago. The National system, which allowed rich young men to buy themselves out of the army, has been abolished. The army is now a democratic school, in which classes are thrown together for one common purpose. Every young man who has reached the age of nineteen years appears at his special garrison. For a full year he is instructed in the rudimentary principles of a soldier's trade. If he has had no military training, he is sent to enter the special service of artillery, infantry, or submarine work, he will have to spend one or two years more. In that case, however, he learns a useful trade which will help his chances in his future work. When he has been taught his business he goes back into private life, except for a short annual maneuver, he has nothing further to do with the military system until a sudden emergency shall call him back to the colors.

"Holland can hope to accomplish great things with comparatively weak forces, because it has an ally mightier than steel or iron or high explosives. That ally is the North Sea. The Kingdom of the Netherlands is a dike bank conquered from the ocean. Open the dikes which defend the land against the angry aggression of the sea and the country will disappear beneath three feet of water. This excellent method of defense was known to our ancestors. It was first used in the year 1572. In the month of April in that year a number of starving Dutch revolutionaries captured a small Dutch town named Brielle. The Spaniards tried to reconquer it. The Hollanders opened the locks of the Meuse. The water came and the Spaniards went.

"A few years later the town of Leiden, situated in the heart of the country, was delivered from Spanish siege by a fleet of catboats and flat-bottomed galleys sailing across an impromptu lake and storming Spanish forts after a charge of swimming and wading sailors.

Water Defenses.
"In the year 1815, when the new Kingdom of the Netherlands was definitely reconstituted, it was decided to use the water in a scientific fashion for the defense of the country. The eastern part, flat and covered with water, was to be left open to invasion. The heart of the country, nine feet below the level of the sea, was to be turned into an ingenious fortress.

"At the present time the old idea has been continued with but small changes. A strong force of cavalry and infantry provided with bicycles is left for the defense of this territory. These men must try and stop the invading power as long as possible. It is an emergency of the most urgent kind to destroy all bridges and to disrupt the movement of the enemy to cross the big rivers. Meanwhile the regular army has retired behind the system of fortresses and inundations, which are altogether designated as the 'Waterline.'

"The 'Waterline' consists of two parts. The first line of defense runs from the Zuider Zee due south to the lower parts of the rivers Meuse and Rhine. It cuts off the provinces of north and south Holland, and half of the province of Utrecht. It creates a large artificial lake from six to ten miles wide, which covers all roads, canals, bridges, railroads, tracks and fences.

Island Forts.
"In many places where an attack might be expected barbed-wire fences have been constructed in such a fashion that they will be completely covered by water. At irregular intervals there are more than forty little islands armed with heavy guns. They cover all the roads which in normal times cross this territory, and they know the exact range of every foot of ground (or rather mud) in the water-line.

"Behind this first line of defense stretches the second one, which is another group of inundations and some forty-eight fortifications, and forms a broad circle of defense for the town of Amsterdam. Here the strength of the country has been concentrated and every since the beginning of the war every lock and every dike has been guarded. Within six hours this territory would be ready to resist an invasion. Within twelve hours thousands of acres of the most fertile grazing land would be covered with four feet of salt water. After day and night neither man nor machine could cross the artificial sea. The much dreaded shells of the heavy siege guns would cause a big splash, but would do no damage.

BETTER MAKE HIM INVENT
PINK 'SKY HOOKS' NEXT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 16.—Barnas S. Kohlenstein, an Hungarian captain of cavalry whose military usefulness was ended when he lost an arm, has devoted himself since his incapacitation to inventing a wooden-soled shoe that shall have the virtue of flexibility, and announces that he has solved this problem, the hardest that has confronted the wooden-soled shoe on this continent.

His invention is a sole that, instead of being made of one solid piece of wood, is constructed of a number of layers joined together by heavy oils or of wood tanned. After countless experiments, Capt. Kohlenstein declares that wooden soles constructed in this manner have the elasticity of leather shoes, in addition can be made of old and worn material worked over.

ALEXANDER IS CHAIRMAN OF RAILROAD COMMISSION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., Aug. 16.—Walter Alexander, member of the railroad commission of Wisconsin, has been elected chairman. Until a few days ago the commission has been operating without a chairman since the resignation of Halford Erickson in May. Commissioner Carl B. Jackson, who was the oldest member of the commission from the standpoint of length of service, was a candidate for the position. Mr. Alexander, who was selected as the chairman, was appointed by Gov. Philipp to succeed David Harlowe of Milwaukee.

AUSTRIA FIGHTS MAKERS OF BULLET PROOF PROTECTOR

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Vienna, Aug. 16.—The Austrian authorities have been making an apparently ineffectual fight against an alleged "bullet protector" that is widely sold, but which it is claimed is dangerous rather than helpful in any way. The "protector" is nothing but a curved piece of metal that is hung about the neck inside the tunic, and which, its producers claim, will stop or lessen the force of a bullet fired at long range. In practice, the authorities claim, it is merely a menace, because a bullet at short range—as most of them are—will not only pierce it easily but flatten out in the process and often carry bits of the metal on into the body.

"Some half a dozen dealers in the courts recently on the charge of endangering public safety. Each claimed that the metal shields will stop bullets fired at a thousand yards or more. The established satisfactorily that they never had sold the shields under any other pretense and therefore could not be held for fraud.

ITALY DOES HER BIT IN GREAT ALLIED OFFENSIVE

Gorizia is only twenty-two miles from Trieste, the objective point of the Italian army for more than a year.

The taking of Gorizia, the "key-stone" of the war on the Italian-Austrian front, marks the most important victory of the Italians since the inception of the war. Trieste being the objective point of the Italians for more than a year, and the fight being centered around this point, and adjacent territory for so long a time, shows that the Italians have joined in with the allied offensive with great force.

Military men assert that with Gorizia now in the hands of the Italians, the way is open for the conquest of the entire Austrian peninsula, with Trieste, Fiume, and the great Austrian naval base at Pola. The topography of the country surrounding Gorizia lent itself to the long successful defense of the city proper, as it is surrounded on all sides by high mountains. Gorizia is in the basin, and on three sides are these towering natural defenses. The Italian advance up these superb natural defenses was tedious and slow, and with seemingly unsurmountable obstacles to overcome before the summit was reached.

The so-called Gorizia bridgehead comprised the territory within the short angle north of the town, and its stronghold was the long, high, rocky ridge of Monte Sabotino, northeast of the city. Directly opposite Gorizia are the Podgora and Osavla heights, the scene of some of the bitterest fighting of the Italian campaign. Gorizia before the war was an inhabited city of perhaps 30,000 people, but a year in the district has reduced it to a condition of shell-torn ruins. It is the junction point of railroads to Laibach, Fiume, and Trieste, as well as being located on the line from Udine, Italy.

ALLIES' SUBJECTS LIVING IN ENGLAND MUST ENLIST OR GO

This Is Government's Decision But It Is Causing a Lot of Trouble Among Political Leaders.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, Aug. 16.—Wide difference of opinion has arisen and the ground prepared for a controversy among the political leaders by the government's decision that the subjects of the allies in the war residing in England should either enlist in the British army or be deported.

Particular objection to the decision has been expressed so far as it may affect Russian subjects here who may be political refugees, a large element of the more liberal thinkers in public life putting themselves in the line of the most ardent opponents of this respect. Herbert Samuel, Secretary of the Home Office, stated in the House of Commons that the plan to deport those failing to enlist would be enforced in the case of Russian subjects, if a tribunal decided that they are political refugees.

How About Jews?
The suggestion has been made that instead of sending back to their own country Russian Jews who had fled Russia for reasons known to everybody, though they are not exactly political refugees, they should be sent to America or deported to some other neutral country of their choice.

The desire to avoid offending Russian susceptibilities on the subject of political refugees, which is regarded as one of unusual delicacy. One group holds that the sending back of Russian Jews to their own country would greatly diminish the Russian cause, and might even have the reverse result. The true inwardness of the situation, according to the London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, is that Englishmen taken into the army and the Russian Jews and regard them as "job stealers."

Russia Dismayed.
The correspondent gives the following letter on the subject received by him from a Russian correspondent: "This step will have a most unfortunate effect upon Russian opinion, which is the chief support in Russia of Anglo-Russian friendship, and which builds all its hopes for Russia's future upon the propagation of the British spirit of freedom and individual liberty. Russian liberals will regard the deportation threat with particular dismay, as being an unexpected and staggering concession to the long-cherished but always baffled desire of the Russian bureaucracy to secure the extradition of Russian political refugees.

England is the great country of Europe that has always protected political refugees, and as such it has quite a unique standing in the eyes of Russian reformers of all shades. It would be quite impossible for an Englishman to resist the feeling of veneration with which England is regarded because of this right of asylum. It was here in London that Alexander Herzen, father of Russian Liberalism, was arrested and tried in his paper 'Kolokol' ('The Bell'), that eventually brought about the emancipation of the serfs. Here in later times have found refuge Tchaikovsky, Prince Kuropatkin, and so many others of our great reformers.

Duma Refugees Here.
"Living in London at this moment are refugee members of the first Duma, and quite a host of revolutionaries who have fled from Russia. They do not want these men as soldiers. If they were sent back to Russia most of them would be put into the army—many of them would have to face the worst penalties. The principal evil would be that the Russian idealization of this country would be shattered and such a disillusionment of Britain's chief political friends in Russia might well prove disastrous to the closer co-operation of the two countries in the future.

WHY ENGLAND CAN'T ANALYZE SENTIMENT OF U. S. MIDDLE WEST

Old John Bull Can't Realize Just How This Section of Country Regards the Allies.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Mercedes, Texas, Aug. 16.—The Middle West, Texas, has a name that sticks in the craw of British statesmen. All the rest of America the British can analyze when they attempt to measure the pro or anti ally leanings of Americans. The Middle West stumps them. It isn't anti ally, but it isn't anti German, they say.

What is it then? I have had the question asked me by such leading Englishmen as Sir William Trenchard and Sir Leo Strachey, editor of The Spectator. And American in Europe for two years during the war couldn't answer the question. Here in Mercedes in the heart of the military district I finally found out. The Middle West about you shortly discover why the middle west hasn't taken sides in the European war.

So you were in the war in Europe? A flashy editor asks you. You'll find his type throughout the German army, also his broken English. "What side were you on?" "Both sides," you say, and he smiles. His name is P. E. Resche and as British commander of the three Minnesota regiment he has some 2500 American soldiers under him. "Look at his face and see if he doesn't look like an Englishman," says Col. L. V. Ewa, of the second Minnesota regiment, into whose tent Resche has just come. "I was born in England and I know an English face when I see one," continues the Colonel. "Come on, come on," he says in his broken English to the Colonel, who is his inferior. "Didn't you promise me you'd ride to town with me?" So the man who was born in England and the man who was born in Germany, both soldiers in Uncle Sam's army, ride away together in an automobile.
